Gold Hill High School Home Economics Class Gives Annual Show, Tea

Gold Hill — The sophomore home economics class held its annual fashion show and tea May 18 in the school gym under direction of Mrs. Allan McGregory, instructor.

The stage was decorated in the spring motif with birds, birdhouses, painted trees and streamers of pastel colors across the stage overhead. Card tables were placed in the garden setting surrounded by a white picket fence with vines over it. Favors were paper ladies with dresses in all colors. Candles were on the tea table.

Mrs. Arthur Strauss and Mrs. Lester Thompson assisted the girls at the tea table.

There are 10 girls in the class and they made the favors and invitations, did most of the decorating in the hall and prepared refreshments.

A program was presented. Clothes made by the girls during the year were modeled, there was music and a moving picture of fabrics and dresses. Miss Jeanette Stone played the piano during the modeling of the first group and Miss Beth Eskew played for the second group.

A group of FHA girls not members of the class seated the guests and served refreshments. They were Misses Carma Ferguson, Sanna Craig, Joan Burk, Velma Dickenson, Elaine Kelley and Beth Eskew.

Miss Jeanette Stone gave a piano solo. Misses Monna Lee Milner and Nadra Lynn Moore gave a clarinet duet and Miss Lavel Massey gave a mandolin solo. The girls' trio, consisting of Misses Joan Burk, Elaine Kelley and Patricia Berry also sang.

There was an exhibit of fabrics, loaned by Mann's Department store, in addition to the motion picture, "Fabrics and Dresses."

Luncheon Speaker Denounces Idea of World Government

Warning against proposals for world government, Mrs. G. Q. D'Albini spoke on this topic at a meeting of Jackson County Republican Women held Monday noon in the Medford hotel. She referred to world government plans as "utopian schemes" and said they would mean a loss of freedom and liberty to the people of this nation.

Mrs. D'Albini quoted from an address by Mrs. W. D. Leetch of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in which Mrs. Leetch declared that the proponents of world government "proposed to scrap the constitution of the United States" and that becoming part of a world government would "necessitate the surrender of national sovereignty of 'we the people' to control and direct our own destiny."

The speaker also gave material against world government prepared by Mrs. W. B. McCullough of Ashland who wrote that "double talk and Mealy thinking" in this country has resulted in "clamoring hordes who are demanding abolition of our free and independent government." Mrs. McCullough had written that this demand came from a "weird conglomeration of visionaries, internationalists, religious pacifists and outright subversives," and added that if the demands and proposals of these were put into effect "our United States would become a province ruled by an internationally operated dictatorship."

"We are being sold a bill of goods, wrapped and double-wrapped in the form of resolutions and bills being presented to the legislatures of the various states and to congress in the forms of bills endorsing world government," the article continued. She said 23 states had already approved such measures, but that some had later rescinded the action, and that now before the senate foreign relations committee are eight resolutions which would either surrender or materially reduce United States sovereignty.

Mrs. McCullough's article outlined the United World Federalist, Inc. movement which she said would set up a world legislative body to enact all laws, a world executive agency to enforce the laws and world courts to try and sentence lawbreakers. The World Federalists want provisions prohibiting the possession by any nation of armament and forces beyond an approved level required for internal policing. The article said, adding that this would mean abolishing the army, navy and air forces of the United States.

In opening her speech Mrs. D'Albini quoted from an article in "Friends of the Public Schools" which called attention to a "decision of the California appellate court which placed the United Nations charter above the law in California barring oriental aliens, particularly Japanese, from owning land in California." Mrs. M. Allison Moulton presided over the meeting, and plans for a Gay Nineties style show June 23 at the Rogue Valley Country club were announced. Mrs. Moulton commented on the recent primary election and said "we now have a slate of candidates; it is up to us to elect them."

Mrs. Curtis L. Hopkins reported on the recent tax meeting sponsored by the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce and recommended that republican women make a special study of measures calling for additional taxation in Oregon.

Women's Clubs Give 'Garden Hat' Show At Recent Meeting

Rogue River—The Rogue River Garden club entertained members of the Gold Hill Garden club last week with a garden hat style show which proved to be an entertaining review. Judges for the show were Mrs. Effie Birdseye, Otto Guhrman and Jim Whipple.

All club members were required to wear hats of their own making and the use of ready made frames was prohibited. Hats were made of baling wire, paper plates, chicken wire and various kinds of vegetation.

Mrs. Daniel Stewart of Gold Hill wore a halo hat made of two paper plates. One was inverted and the space between the rims was trimmed with iris and spirea. She received a prize for the most beautiful hat.

Mrs. Alice Dixon's hat made of baling wire and trimmed with iris and snowballs was voted the most elaborate and comical. Mrs. Larry Rose's was chosen as the most original. It was a pixie hat made of mullein leaves. Mrs. Lester Savage wore a prize winning hat which was of special interest to the club members. It was woven of tule from Savage creek and trimmed with a graceful oriental poppy. The most humorous creation was Mrs. Phil Strahan's hat made with a wire coat hanger and trimmed with iris.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Reece of Ingleswood, Cal., mother of Mrs. Daniel Stewart, who was the oldest mother present and also the oldest great grandmother, and to Mrs. Emmy La Phan, the youngest mother.

Horticulture chairman, Mrs. Faye Rose, brought an arrangement of pink snowballs to the meeting but confessed they were artificially colored and not produced by her recently purchased plants.

President Ruby Hughes requested members to submit cover designs for the new year books and to remember the club's new meeting date is the third Tuesday of each month.

Miss Inez Coffin Visitor in Medford

Miss Inez Coffin, who taught school in Medford many years ago, is visiting in Medford for a few days and is a guest at the Medford hotel. Miss Coffin, who now makes her home in Fresno, Cal., at one time taught at the Washington school and was supervisor of music in the schools.

The visitor recalled yesterday how her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Coffin, came to Medford in the early days and built the home which now stands at 60 Rose avenue. Mr. Coffin was in the produce business. The entire family was active in music circles of the city. Miss Coffin taught and directed the choir of the First Christian church. Mrs. Coffin, a pianist, worked with the Greater Medford club and another daughter was a vocal soloist, appearing on many programs. The two young women studied under Mrs. Ed Andrews, and Mrs. Coffin often served as an accompanist for Mrs. Andrews, one of the city's outstanding vocalists at that time.

A brother, Charles Roswell Coffin, later returned to the midwest and became a Chicago business man and Miss Inez Coffin taught in California, having been supervisor of public school music for Fresno at one time.

Miss Coffin's grandfather, Albert R. Coffin, and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Eastman, also lived here. Mr. Coffin having passed away here many years ago. The Eastmans later moved to Roseburg.

Miss Coffin said yesterday she would be interested in contacting family friends who still live in the city.
