Radio Script Wins Prize for Writer

By Johnny Ah-n

A note for the west side: The West Side school was through the studios on Thursday, to get all the info possible on those strange noises from their radio speakers. Hope they enjoyed the trip... and who knows, from that group may come the Ken Carpenter or Don Wilson of the future. Our welcome mat is always out, so how about some more visitors.

The city of Winnipeg has plenty of water troubles, but the sound man on "This Is Your FBI" could just about match it. On a recent program in the series, Producer Jerry Devine used rain effects in every scene to just about run the water department dry. A total of 755 gallons of water were used in all to get the desired effect. That may not be too much on a warm summer day, but in a studio, it could be pretty sloppy.

Short column today. The day this went into print was far too nice to be sitting in front of a typewriter. Hope your having the same kind of day today... and you'll understand what we mean.

Espee Cars Damaged As Train Derailed
Elko, Nev., May 23--(U.P.)--Some twenty cars were demolished near here last night when a Southern Pacific freight train derailed at the entrance to Palsade canyon.

All crewmen escaped without injury as 20 of 99 cars in the eastbound freight leaped the tracks at the tunnel entrance to the rim-rocked canyon. Southern Pacific officials said several of the cars hurled into the adjacent Humboldt river and the remainder "piled up like cordwood" against the solid walls of rock that bordered the tunnel entrance. A defective brake rigging is believed to have caused the cars behind the engine to derail.

Dallas, Ore., May 23--(U.P.)--Bert Miller, 54, Veneta, was killed last night when his car overturned at Dolph Corner on the highway leading to the coast from Dallas.

Your Health and Its Care

SMOKING IS BAD FOR THE HEART

Although most physicians forbid smoking when the patient shows any symptoms or signs of thrombo-angitis obliterans (Buerger's disease), some physicians argue that if smoking were the cause or even the chief cause of this degeneration of the arteries the condition would be widely prevalent here but in fact it is comparatively rare. So many young and middle aged Americans make hogs of themselves (my apologies to the swine) with their smoking.

Nowadays there is even a disposition on the part of some good physicians to allow certain patients with coronary thrombosis and certain patients with angina pectoris to smoke an after-dinner cigar or an after-breakfast pipe or an after-lunch cigarette. Only certain patients, that is—patients the physician believes may derive sufficient benefit in the psychic (mental or nervous) to offset untoward effects in the physical field. Oh, as Bastedo expresses it (Maeris Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics):

Both through a psychic satisfaction to the habitue and through a pharmacological narcotic effect, a smoke will frequently ease nervous tension. The war taught us the calming effect on the wounded soldier of the lighted cigarette handed to him, and at examinations I have now and then found a student in a nervous funk till allowed a cigarette. Smoking in moderation may indeed favor that relation in mind and body that we physicians stress so much for those with worries, anxiety neuroses and other psychic disturbances.

In college students Dr. Maddock and Collier observed a rise of from 8 to 38 beats a minute in the heart action from smoking a cigarette. That doesn't jibe with the idea that smoking in moderation eases nervous tension or favors relaxation in mind and body.

Dr. Bastedo cites an interesting observation made by Staehelin upon himself. He smoked 6 to 8 cigars a day—(shame, shame, even if they were only 10-cent cigars, how can a man enjoy such selfish indulgence when by only moderate restraint he might save enough to feed or clothe some unhappy soul?)—for six months—(at 50 cents a day that would come to $90, but maybe the man thought the experiment justified the expense)—then abstained for six months.

During the $90 period his pulse rate averaged 82. During the period of abstinence his pulse rate averaged 75. During the $90 period a standard exercise produced a rise to 157 in the pulse rate. During the period of abstinence the same exercise produced a rise to 124 in the pulse rate. The heart took considerable longer to return to normal after exercise during the ninety-dollar period.

Every youth who aspires to success in athletics knows he cannot smoke. Nearly all observers find that breathlessness or windiness comes on earlier in smokers than in non-smokers. The heart pumps less blood after smoking.

The National War Council of the Y. M. C. A. found that smoking a cigar lowered accuracy in rifle shooting, and Fisher and Berry found the same effect on baseball throwing—with a recovery of normal accuracy after a thirty-minute rest without smoking.

These are merely the actual, practical, demonstrable, undebatable facts.
