

MOTHER'S HEROISM AVERTS TRAGEDY—An overturned tricycle and a smashed bag of groceries alongside the dented fender of a car in Williston Park, N. Y., tell the story of a mother's heroism that prevented a tragedy. Mrs. Marie Pascucci, with her daughter, Marie, 3, were on a shopping tour when the child pedaled into the path of an on-coming car. Mrs. Pascucci dove into the street and swept the child from the path of the car. At right, Marie clutches her mother while a passerby comforts Mrs. Pascucci, whose right leg was slightly injured.

Japanese Newspaper Men Ordered Banned

Tokyo, June 8 — (U.P.) — Gen-Douglas MacArthur today banned from all party activities 17 editors of the communist party newspaper Akahata. The move was in retaliation for their defiant nationwide general strike call protesting MacArthur's purge of 24 top communist party leaders.

At the same time there was speculation that MacArthur may order Russian delegates to the allied control council here to leave Japan if they continue to boycott council meetings. They failed to show up again today.

country and is transmitted from them to the dog. The number of human beings affected seems rather small, but the disease is dreaded because of the horrible convulsions by its victims and the complete certainty of death once symptoms become apparent.

"Because of the uniform fatality among rabies victims, the great hope of survival in rabies is prevention."

New Vaccine Has Safety
The Lederle scientists said the new vaccine has been tested on about 10,000 dogs and that none suffered any serious effects. Some dogs after being vaccinated were injected with the rabies virus, but the disease was thrown off.

They said veterinarians will be able to immunize a dog against rabies by a single injection and that if dog owners would cooperate with the vaccination programs as organized by public health officials, rabies can be controlled effectively and eventually eliminated.

Hollywood, June 8 — (U.P.) — Next time you buy a corset or a bra, girls, spare a few thoughts for the misunderstood "daredevils" who make the things.

Ladies' underwear, they'll have you know, is dangerous work for a mere male!

Five manufacturers got together today and compared notes on the good old days when ladies weren't interested in "uplifts" and when they were still an actor, a rug salesman, a psychologist, a dairyman and a surveyor.

Now they risk life and limb and reputation daily—and all they get for it is a lousy, old fortune.

Corraling female bulges in whalebone and lace is a delicate operation, according to manufacturers M. K. De La Vallade, G. Peter Rosenfeld, E. Sterling Ferguson, Jan Erteszek, and Raymond Redares.

Must Watch Reputation
"You have to be very careful of your reputation," Rosenfeld added. "Some men might envy our job of fitting bras on women. But, actually, it's very dangerous work."

"Most of us manage to keep a doctor's objectivity about it all. But now and then a manufacturer will step out of line with a model or a customer—and then we all get a bad name."

That's why, the gentlemen agreed, they always insist another woman be present during all fittings.

"We get a few exhibitionists," Rosenfeld said, "and it's absolutely essential that we have another witness around in case there's any trouble."

One of Problems
That's just one of the problems the bra and girdle boys run into. They also have to keep ahead of ladies' fashions and any man knows how ticklish that is.

If they guess wrong... they're out of business. And as members of California apparel creators, they do $20,000,000 a year. It's things like this, they admitted, that make 'em wonder sometimes why they ever went into ladies' lingerie in the first place.

"I'll tell you why I did," Erteszek shrugged. "I was a criminal psychologist. And crime does not pay—as well as bras-sieres."

Ferguson is an ex-actor who couldn't crack the movies. Now he makes bras for girls who did. Rosenfeld was a contractor and a rug salesman. And De La Vallade worked in a dairy.

Footlighters Plan Aid to Girl Scouts

At the June meeting of the Footlighters, civic theater group, Monday evening, plans were laid for instruction of local eighth and ninth grade Girl scout groups, June 12 through June 23, for merit badges in dramatic activity.

Several Footlighters members will work voluntarily in the project. A request had been made to the group for the instruction by local Girl scout day camp chairman, Mrs. Fletcher Stout.

The Monday meeting was one of the most significant since the Footlighters had organized, according to Keith Hopkins, vice-president. Many newcomers attended, with a record turn-out of older members, to hear Mrs. Phyllis Beardsley, Ashland, speak on potentialities of the theater in the church. A successful playwright in that field herself, Mrs. Beardsley pointed out the scope of drama as a medium for messages and stimulation of better living.

Jim Sullivan, educational director, outlined a dramatic training program for the next three months which will include presentation of play readings to familiarize members with current and classic drama; operation of an entertainment unit for service to other civic organizations, and weekly classes in theatrical essentials of make-up, costuming, dramatic criticism and play direction.

New Vaccine Developed to Protect Dogs From Rabies—Man Also to Benefit by Its Use

By Paul F. Ellis

United Press Science Editor
New York, June 8 — (U.P.) — Man is helping his "best friend" to overcome a serious and usually fatal disease.

Man, in turn, is helping to prevent the same ailment, rabies, in himself.

The new development is a rabies vaccine for dog immunization, described as "the most important step taken toward elimination of rabies as a fatal disease since the work done by Pasteur."

It was Louis Pasteur, the French scientist, who first developed a vaccine against rabies. His work led to the development of vaccines in other diseases.

Vaccine Made Available
The new vaccine was developed by Drs. Herald R. Cox and Hilary Koprowski, researchers in the field of virus diseases, and on the staff of the Lederle laboratories division, American Cyanamid company, Pearl River, N. Y. It was in the same laboratory where aureomycin, a powerful new drug for human use, was first developed.

The researchers, who expect the new material will be made available to all veterinarians and to state sanitary and public health officials, said the vaccine is produced from live virus which has been modified by growth in chick embryos.

It does not contain brain or spinal cord tissue, substances that made the old type of vaccine material somewhat dangerous for human use, and dogs, too, for that matter.

In the old type of vaccine, the material was made from killed rabies virus grown in tissues from the brain and spinal cords, or the use of fixed live virus from the same sources.

Rabies Still Top Problem
Dr. Cox said rabies, or hydrophobia as it is commonly known, still is a top public health problem. He said:

"In recent years, more than 7,000 cases of rabies in dogs and more than 30 cases in humans have been reported annually, with the probability that a great many additional cases are never reported."

"The fear of rabies is worldwide. The so-called 'reservoir' of rabies exists primarily in the wild animal population of the
