The wedding took place Thursday, June 1 at the Free Methodist church in Grants Pass, with the Rev. Edward C. Bush officiating at the eight o'clock evening rites.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin made with full train and a bodice designed with narrow collar. Her fingertip length veil of French illusion fell from a coronet of pearl beads and she carried white carnations and sweet peas.

Miss Marlene Wilson, maid-of-honor wore a frock of aquamarine taffeta and lace. The bridesmaids were Miss Ernestine Miller and Miss Beverly Phillips. Miss Miller wore a gown of soft pink and Miss Phillips wore a frock of pale orchid color. All the attendants carried bouquets of sweet peas.

Layne Snodgrass, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a rose colored taffeta gown.

Virgil Books was best man for the bridegroom and Hollis Hopper and Jack Snodgrass, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers. Eugene Mitchell was soloist for the ceremony, with Mrs. Wesley Wilson at the piano. Candles were lighted by Hobart May and Carol Green.

The church was decorated with iris, sweet peas and other spring blossoms, and tall candles stood at each side of the altar.

The reception was held in the garden of the Snodgrass home. The bride's mother received in an ensemble of navy blue and white and her corsage was white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue and white dress with carnation corsage.

The buffet table was centered with the wedding cake flanked with white flowers. Mrs. James F. Harris, sister of the bride, cut the cake and also assisting at the reception were Mrs. John Snodgrass, Miss Phillips, Miss Miller and Mrs. John Loika.

The newlyweds traveled to Wichita, Kan., for their wedding trip, the bride wearing a suit of glen plaid. Upon returning, the couple will live at West J street in Grants Pass. The bride had been an office employee of Domestic Laundry for one and a half years before her wedding.

Because the wild horse had little protection from its enemies besides running ability, nature gave it the advantage of early development. A colt can lift its head ten minutes after birth and can stand up an hour later. Wobbling at first, the day-old colt can walk and run.

Look at Fiji Where 'Names Are Names'

Suva, Fiji (UPI)—Fiji newspapers weren't impressed when the New Zealand press credited police inspector Levani Tamani-kaurukuruvalau with the longest name in the world.

The Fiji Times and Herald started a competition. One correspondent produced 46-letter Isikeli Daulakacakawasomamavaleniveimainavavao which means, "Isikeli, habitually a prisoner at Vavau."

That certainly beats Tamani-kaurukuruvalau's 28 letters. But then up came a patient at Tamavua hospital, Akula S. Tawake, who claimed 51 letters in his second name.

Take a deep breath. It's Senikauikatonimatekeiratusalesiki-nikilaukinemoli. Akula explained this masterpiece is based on common Fijian practice to connect names with lives of some noted relative or ancestor. It refers to the flowers on the coffin of Ratu Salei Kinikillau at the Namoli cemetery at Tuvou, Lakeba.

By way of frosting for this fruitcake of names, the Fijian staff of the public relations office dug up the longest of them all. It's the name of young cricketer Bula, who played cricket for Fiji in New Zealand. His full name: (we'll start a new line)
