

On the Side—By E. V. Durling

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

My own sweet love! O my dear peerless wife!
By the blue sky and all the crowding stars,
I love you better—oh, far better than
Woman was ever loved. There is not an hour
Of day or dreaming night but I am with you.
There's not a wind but whispers of your name.
Not a flower that sleeps beneath the moon.
But in its hues or fragrance tells a tale of you.
—Barry Cornwall

So the latest exchange is 350 French francs to the dollar. The last time I saw Paris, which was in 1939, I received only thirty francs for a dollar. Still, that wasn't bad. It is, of course, the buying power that counts. In 1939 in Paris you could buy a good Havana cigar for 6 francs. You could get a haircut for the same price you could have coffee and cognac at Fouquet's sidewalk cafe on the Champs Elysee for 10 francs. And you could make a 10-franc bet at the racetrack.

Getting It Right.
My claim was that Lillian Russell enjoyed a good cigar. A New Yorker who claimed she knew Lillian Russell very well stated I was wrong; that the glamorous charmer of the yesteryear never smoked a cigar in her life. I have considerable proof my statement was correct. I offer in evidence the following communication from Bill Holbrook: "Regarding your statement that Lillian Russell enjoyed a good cigar, I recall the eventful day that my father, Al Holbrook, who produced musicals for Weber and Fields took me backstage to see the great beauty. She, Lillian Russell, was wearing long white bloomers and a long cinch set with whalebone or metal ribs in it. She was smoking a large, black cigar."

Please Note.
In 1947, when Robert Taylor visited London, he was surrounded by a wild mob of thousands of feminine admirers. He was embraced and kissed by many of these female fans. Some tore buttons from his coat for souvenirs. Recently on his way to Rome, where he will be in the cast of "Quo Vadis," Taylor stopped in London. This time no mob of adoring females surrounded him. In fact, not even one female asked for his autograph. Taylor viewed the situation philosophically. He said to a reporter:

"After all, I am 38 years old and have been around a long time, so I can no longer expect that sort of thing. But listen, brother, they're not tearing Gable's buttons off anymore either."

Asides.
You know the Monitor defeated the Merrimack at Hampton Roads, Va., in 1862. But did you know the Monitor was built on Brooklyn? Good, old Brooklyn! A Californian who objects to kissing on grounds that it is not hygienic claimed she had never been kissed, though she had been married forty years and was the mother of fourteen children.

Grounds for Divorce.
The leader in grounds for divorce throughout the world is cruelty. That is revealed by extensive research conducted by the French Institute of Demographic studies. Keep that in mind, lady. Do not be cruel to your husband.

As there are thirteen hundred and forty-two ways a woman can be cruel to her spouse, space does not permit their listing here, but one of them is nagging. After cruelty the next three leading grounds for divorce, according to the aforementioned research, are in the order named, infidelity, egoism and avarice.

The United States leads the major nations of the world in divorce. Eighty-six out of every ten thousand marriages in this country end in the divorce courts. The British have the best record. They usually marry for keeps. Only seven out of ten thousand British marriages end in divorce.

Rabbits.
Note it stated that if you take two rabbits and start breeding, that at the end of the ninth generation, if no deaths have occurred, you will have nine million rabbits.
Now that's something really interesting for that Milwaukee checkerupper to check. I will be glad to furnish him with the first two rabbits.

Longevity.
Geniatrics is the study of longevity. Men of science specializing in this study try to figure out ways and means of enabling people to live a healthy old age. One specialist in geniatrics says doing housework conscientiously and thoroughly makes a woman live longer. Call that to the attention of your wife. Mister, the next time she refers to her housework as an arduous task. Tell her she is lucky not to have a maid to do the work as that would shorten her life.

Sidelights.
Do you think thirteen is unlucky? If so, you suffer from triskaidephobia. Are you afraid of your wife? If such is the case you are afflicted with uxoriousness. ... A new Yorker informs me that while in Los Angeles he was given a ticket and fined two dollars for walking across a street against a red light. Sees him right. More cities should have penalties for careless walking. It is the cause of many accidents.

Examinations for Army and Naval Appointments Soon

Washington, June 13—Congressman Harris Ellsworth announced today that competitive examinations for appointments to vacancies at both the U. S. Naval and U. S. Military academies will be conducted by the U. S. Civil Service commission, Monday, July 17, at the post office buildings in Albany, Coos Bay, Eugene, Grants Pass, Medford, Roseburg, and Reedsport.

Candidates for the academies must have been married, and must be bona fide residents of the fourth congressional district. As of the date of entrance into the academies, July 1, 1951, appointees must be 17 years of age. The maximum entrance ages for West Point and Annapolis are 22, and 21 respectively. Candidates now in the armed services are eligible to compete.

Examination Confined.
The examination will be confined to vocabulary and reading, spatial relations, and algebra. Nominations to the academies will be on the basis of grades earned in the competitive examination.

Candidates desiring to compete should notify Congressman Harris Ellsworth, House Office Bldg., Washington, D. C., not later than June 28, indicating their choice of place for examination, legal residence, and date of birth.

Lightning Bolt Jars Man and Livestock

Turner, Ore., June 13—(U.S.)—A bolt of lightning struck Olin Spiva's silo Saturday night, flashed through his barn and knocked down Spiva, a row of 20 cows he was milking and one of his horses. Then it snaked up to the roof and tore loose a few boards.

Spiva, the cows and the horse were shaken up a bit, but otherwise were reported unharmed.
