As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

OLD COUNTRY FATHER NEEDS LESSONS ON AMERICAN CUSTOMS

...O. "I am 17 years old and a senior in high school. I have been asked to the senior prom by my father said I can't go. Somehow or other, he still believes in the old customs of his country. I can't go out with boys and I can't even go to shows or riding with my girl friends. And he doesn't let me go to any of the school parties or dances. He says that in his country, girls aren't allowed to do any of these things. Please help me solve this problem."

A. Tell your father that you are an "American" girl and that you want to do what American girls do. It is unfair to expect you to live as girls do in his native country when the girls you associate with are permitted to do what typical American girls do.

Children of foreign-born parents often suffer from the same problem that you are suffering from. Their parents expect them to live as they were reared.

If you had been brought up in your father's native land, you would not object to his restrictions because all your friends would be subjected to the same restrictions. But, you are being brought up in America where teenagers are given more freedom than in any part of the world, especially teenage girls. You naturally cannot be happy when you are made so different from the other girls. Parties, dances, and dates are all a part of American school life. You should be able to take part in this part of school life just as you do in studies and athletics.

Ask Teacher's Aid

If you can make no headway in your talks with your father, why not ask one of the teachers in your school to come to your home and talk to your parents? She may be able to explain the whole matter to him better than you can.

Your minister can also help you to solve this problem by talking to your father. If his minister approves of what you want, I am sure your father will see the problem in a new light.

For your sake, I hope you will be able to solve this problem before too late. Senior year in your American high schools is an important part of a young person's life and the parties are often the "last fling" young people have before they settle down to the serious business of earning a living. It would seem a pity for you to have to miss all of these pleasures.

DON'T PUNISH THE CHILD FOR NUTRITIONAL DEFICIENCY

Since moving from Connecticut to Michigan three years ago, Mrs. C. W. M. has gained forty pounds for no apparent reason, her husband has not gained weight but has grown irritable and their six-year-old son, who had gotten over bed-wetting is now worse than ever although roused several times at night.

Mrs. M. wonders if it is far fetched to attribute all this to iodine deficiency. Not at all. I have sent Mrs. M. Instructions for Taking The Iodine Ration—the pamphlet is available on request if you send stamped self-addressed envelope. I hope each member of the family will get his or her daily ration from now on. In view of the lack of iodine or iodide in the food and water in Michigan I believe each member of the M. family should take the regular daily ration suggested in the pamphlet, everyday for the first three months, in order to build up something like a normal reserve or store of iodine in the thyroid gland—which has been depleted since they moved from Connecticut. Thereafter once or twice a week the year around.

As for the bed-wetting, there is a good deal of clinical evidence that iodine deficiency is a common predisposing cause of bed-wetting. Bed-wetting children most likely to be helped by iodine are underweight, low in vitality, have subnormal body temperature and frequently complain of feeling cold when or where normal persons are comfortable enough. Their hands and feet often look blanched and feel cold to the touch.

That's all for today's clinic. But there's one other thing I'd like to talk about. Mrs. M. wishes me a long, long life, for the world sorely needs a down-to-earth person like me, one who is practical, reasonable and honest (no kidding, these are her own words). "Would that we had fewer 'trick specialists' and more practitioners a la Dr. Brady!"

I must say it does this flinty heart good to receive a hunk of flattery once in a while, but let Mrs. M. remember it is easier to hand out a line in print than it is in practice. I tried it for eighteen years in practice and I know.

Newspapers carried a story recently of a woman who beat a child to death because, as she explained, the child would not stop wetting the bed. No doubt the creature was demented, but what can we say that is fit to print, about parents or guardians who punish, ridicule and shame a child for such a manifestation of nutritional deficiency?

The right mental attitude of the parents or the child's elders helps the child to acquire control and the wrong attitude—
