

BATTLE MILLION-DOLLAR BLAZE—From adjoining rooftop, firemen battle a raging fire that is consuming the seven-story Clinton Hotel in downtown Philadelphia. The seven-alarm, million-dollar fire was the city's worst in three years. More than 150 persons were evacuated safely. Those trapped on upper floors were rescued down aerial ladders by firemen. Sixteen firemen were overcome by smoke and taken to hospitals. Fifty others were treated at the scene for smoke inhalation.

As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

IGNORE INTERFERING IN-LAWS COMPLETELY

(Q) "My mother-in-law is the type of person who thinks she should be considered first with her children. My husband is the only one of a large family who disagrees with this. I, as his wife, am blamed because I agree that his wife and child should come first. This has caused a lot of hard feelings and they all run me down. Relatives, knowing only one side, believe these lies and dislike me. How can I make them stop talking about me?"
Mrs. D. G.

(A) You cannot stop your relatives' talk unless you can prove legally that they have hurt your reputation by what they say. The best thing to do is to shun them. If they talk against you, keep out of their way. Devote your time to your family and friends and leave them out of your life. That way you will be spared having them talk down their noses to you.

Dr. Hurlock

You are fortunate in having a husband who is strong enough to buff a possessive mother. Most men whose mothers try to tie their sons to them are too weak to cut these cords. So long as your husband feels as he does about the role a husband and father should assume, you will not have to contend with trouble from him as so many wives do when they have possessive mothers-in-law. But, at the same time, you do not want to give your in-laws an opportunity to try to poison your husband's mind against you. Build Circle of Friends.

You can handle the situation tactfully by building up a large circle of friends so that your husband will not be tempted to fall back on his family for companionship. You can also put him out of their reach by moving so far from his relatives that they won't go out of their way to bother you.

Encourage your husband to take an active part in rearing your children. If he is busy doing things for them and with them, there will be less temptation for him to run home to see his family. Then, what they say behind your back will not hurt you because you won't know what it is.

If you have a problem about family or friend, ask Dr. Hurlock to help you. Write in care of this newspaper.

Nutrias, recent imports from South America that look like stunted beaver, have never been seen to eat fish nor show any inclination to eat the eggs of waterfowl nesting in the same area.
