Kiwanis Kapers Put On 'Recommended' List by MT Reviewer

For theatergoers who like well-balanced and blended variety in their entertainment, the fourth annual Kiwanis Kapers and Minstrel show presentation of "Gee! Washington" is on the "recommended" list.

The production, which played to an appreciative audience of second nighters at the senior high school auditorium last night and will be repeated tonight and Saturday, runs the gamut in variety from the hilarious and ridiculous to the sublime and sentimental. Its songs, dances, gags, spectacles and colorful costuming stir almost every emotion.

'Give Away' Number

"Gee! Washington" reaches heights of hilarity in the Dandy Candidates number, in the antics of the end men and in the greatest give-away program since the Kefauver investigation. There is deep sentiment in Monument Moments as Bud Hohensee and Geneva Young, as George and Martha Washington, in glowing costumes, step out of picture frames and do a minuet as daylight fades.

Kiwanians strike a serious note as Ron Rice and the cast sing "I Am an American" in the first act finale and as the minstrel chorus sings "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

It's a show full of surprise endings, and the Thursday audience, in anticipation, warmed to the production as it progressed.

Director Credited

Phil Butler, Geller productions, who wrote and produced the show and is the director can be credited with a fine job of casting the Kapers. Duane Carol Maddox and Glen Crocker are fresh as spring in their leading roles of several scenes in the first act. "Gorgeous George" Rode, haughty and dignified, and Jack Peter, fanfarish, fill their roles well as Dandy Candidates.

Ron Rice is well-cast as a hotel manager. Hohensee as a general in the Jet Job scene plays with professional efficiency and Jim Harper as a sailor is the cause of a number of hilarious moments. The Jet Job act produces an unusual "stranger" who turns out to be a person well-known to Medfordites.

Minstrel Act

In the minstrel act Thursday, Sally Champlin was encored for her rendition of "The Loveliest Night of the Year." The Three Notes, Dean and Gus Voss and Don Phelps of Crater high school, were a popular trio. Gus's imitation of Donald Duck was a show highlight. The Novelaires, Glen and Mel Crocker, Don Keener and Charlie Carroll, were well-received again.

Dora Black and Karlene Johnson provided novelty by rattling bones and Colleen Hope and Pat White variety with a snappy dance routine. Zoe Peters, Ashland blue vocalist and Kapers veteran, gave her usual excellent performance.

Show Balanced

Dance choruses added to the balance of the show and the high school orchestra aided much in the smooth performance. The sound system was improved over past years.

Kiwanians anticipate capacity audiences for the Friday and Saturday shows, starting at 8:15 p. m.—Committeemen stated that a few choice seats remain. They said that last night's audience was somewhat larger than the second night last year.—R. D. J.

New versatility comes to the fashion fore for Spring '52. Here, it is represented by a three-piece suit that includes a reversible vest which can be mixed or matched to other suits or even sports ensembles. Of Tanbro's checked rayon gabardine by Versailles.
