

Medford High News Notes

By ROSENE STARCHER

Four weeks have passed in the traffic safety contest now being conducted at Medford High. Each student who violates a school, local, or state traffic rule is assessed a certain number of demerits which count against his class as a whole. The number of demerits given each class is set according to the number of drivers in that class. The class having the least number of demerits by May 9, the last day of the contest, will receive a half-holiday. The date of the holiday will be set by Mr. Harris.

The senior class leads with 261 demerits, the sophomores are second with 445, and the juniors are last with 631 points against them.

Richard Dickenson, a senior, won the Jackson county oratorical contest held at Crater High in Central Point Wednesday night. Subject of the contest, sponsored by The American Legion, was "The Constitution of the United States—Its Articles and Amendments."

The district finals, with contestants from Jackson, Josephine, Klamath and Lake counties, were held Saturday in the auditorium.

A large percentage of students in the band and orchestra received music letters at the annual award assembly, held in the auditorium Thursday morning.

Third awards were given to Sallee Buffington, Edmond Davis, Cherie Knudson, Ned and Ted Landers, Kenny McKemie, Ellen Rawstern, Betty Walden, Jerry Lambo, Marilyn Doty, Shirley Garris, Blake Maddox, Nancy Newton, and Barbara Swanson.

Ed Cowell, Janet Monia, Bob Fry and Vivian Powell were given their fourth letters, and Marie Laird and PomeRoy Sorum were awarded their fifth letters.

Operatic Singer Works as Servant In Canadian City

Ottawa, Ont.—(U.P.)—A Yugoslavian displaced person is living a Cinderella story in reverse here but hopes that it will have a happy ending yet.

Libusa Cristiani, an outstanding operatic singer in her native country, is working as a domestic servant for the privilege of becoming a Canadian citizen. She has to look forward to another seven months of menial labor before abandoning her pots and pans to resume an interrupted singing career.

Miss Cristiani came here last September. Under immigration rules, displaced women must put in at least one year as domestics before taking up work of their choosing.

The tall, shapely singer is considered by Conductor H. Bramwell Bailey of the Ottawa Grand Opera Company as prospective Metropolitan Opera material.

"Miss Cristiani has a very, very good soprano voice," Bailey said. "She needs little training; her need is an opportunity to apply her talent in opera. And, she must learn English."

Miss Cristiani, who won acclaim in Trieste and Yugoslavia with her full-bodied voice, spoke no English on her arrival in Canada.

Reluctant to sing in the home of her employers for fear of disturbing the household, Miss Cristiani kept to herself. She gave no hint of her past occupation. Her retiring manner afforded her little opportunity to learn English.

Her employers did not discover that she had been a singer in her native land until informed by the department of labor, through which Miss Cristiana came to this country.

The family, which had to coax her to sing after hearing of her talent, introduced her to Bailey, and recently at a meeting of the Ad and Sales Club here, Miss Cristiana gave her first performance in many months.

After the brief concert, Miss Cristiana dutifully returned to her work as a maid.

During her off hours, however, she continues practicing with Bailey.

To give a touch of something new, serve with brandy-flavored soft custard.
