

Truman's Adviser In Disagreement About Bankruptcy

Washington—(U.P.)—Leon H. Keyserling, chairman of President Truman's council of economic advisers, emphatically disagreed with congressional warnings that the United States may be spending itself into "bankruptcy."

He also believes it would be better—from an economist's point of view—to raise taxes enough to put the rearmament program on a pay-as-we-go basis. That would require a tax increase of some $14 billion a year, but Keyserling thinks it would be "cheaper in the long run than inflation."

Told in Testimony
His belief that the United States is still in healthy economic condition despite the strains of the defense program was expounded in recent testimony before a House appropriations subcommittee. The closed-door testimony was published Tuesday.

Rep. Sidney R. Yates, D-Ill., asked Keyserling about the frequent warnings of congressional economy bloc leaders that "the United States is on the brink of bankruptcy."

Seen Strong Economically
Keyserling replied:
"A nation whose national income and national output has been rising five, six or seven percent a year, or even more, and which is fully using its manpower and resources in the production of an enormous quantity of goods and services is, I believe, very strong economically."

"I do not think that a nation in which private enterprise was investing last year at the annual rate of about $55 billion is in bad shape economically."

Ceremonies To Mark Start of Dalles Dam

The Dalles, Ore.—(U.P.)—Special ceremonies were scheduled here Wednesday to mark the opening of The Dalles dam construction.

A parade in downtown area at 2 p.m. was to open the celebration, followed by a program at the Big Eddy offices of the Army engineers. A gigantic explosion was to be set off where contractors have started blasting and drilling operations for the dam.

A ceremonial banquet was scheduled at 6:30 p.m. with Gov. Douglas McKay as principal speaker.

Tenant Licks Problem Of Cold Apartment

New York—(U.P.)—An ingenious electrical engineer has solved his cold war problem with his landlord.

Melvin A. Carter connected a thermostat to a recording machine and whenever the temperature dropped below 65 degrees a loudspeaker concealed close to the landlord's apartment would blare: "A landlord who does not provide 65-degree heat when it is less than 65 outside is liable to a $500 fine or a year in jail." The landlord promised to furnish the necessary heat.
