SOC Registration For Spring Quarter Begins Tomorrow

Ashland—The spring recess at Southern Oregon college will end tomorrow when registration for spring quarter will begin. Classes will reconvene on Tuesday and the term will continue through June 6.

Valley residents interested in enrolling in the eight evening classes to be offered this spring may do so by calling at the registrar's office or may register at the first meeting of the class, according to Mrs. Mabel W. Winston, registrar.

Still Some Openings
Mrs. Winston reported that classes in photography and ceramics have nearly been filled, but openings still exist in contemporary novel, vocal music lessons, speech and diction, contemporary problems, social dance and folk dance.

The first night class to convene will be that of speech and diction offered Tuesday evenings by Leon C. Mulling, associate professor of speech.

Special campus activities scheduled for the spring term include the AAUW conference for young women on March 29; the annual faculty follies April 3, 4 and 5; senior visitation weekend April 25, 26 and 27; the Jackson County Elementary Music festival May 7; campus day and mothers' week-end.

New Type Russian Jet Planes Spotted

Seoul—(U.P.)—American Sabrejet pilots said Friday they spotted a full flight of new "Type 15" Communist jet fighters in MIG Alley Thursday, the first time the new enemy planes have appeared in strength.

The new high-wing enemy jets refused to fight, but the Sabrejets shot down five slightly smaller, low-winged MIG-15 jets, damaged eight and probably damaged five more.

The ground war remained stagnant, with the Reds pushing three small probes at Allied lines on the western front. The Communists stepped up their shelling of UN rear positions.

Fist Fights Fatal To Hospital Inmates

Salem—(U.P.)—Two senile patients of Oregon State hospital died this week after fights with other patients, Dr. C. E. Bates, superintendent, said Friday.

One male patient, age 71, was hurt Monday night when he was attacked by other inmates of the men's ward. He was treated at the infirmary and died some five hours later.

The other male patient, age 70, was found dead in his bed in the men's ward Monday. His body bore marks of a fight but officials said the wounds were not heavy. The man had recently suffered a stroke.

Dr. Bates said a contributing factor to the trouble was overcrowding and shortage of attendants.

The principal green coffee trading markets of the world are New York, LaHavre, Hamburg and Antwerp.

Weather Bureau Employees Receive Long-Service Pins

R. D. Church, Ward L. Lampkin and F. Scott Bauman of the local Weather Bureau's Medford airport station recently received length of service awards from the Department of Commerce in the form of lapel buttons.

Church's button indicates 20 years service. His tour of duty with the Weather Bureau started in Pasco, Wash., in June, 1931. After 4 years of desert service, he spent 2½ years in Pendleton, 4 years in Spokane, 1½ years traveling throughout Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana as an inspector, and 11 months at Glasgow, Mont. Since the spring of 1944 he has been in charge of the Medford office.

10-Year Award
Bauman's service started in Akron, O., in March, 1941, entitling him to a 10-year service award. From Akron his assignments include special training in radiosonde observations at Washington National airport in the spring of 1942, two months' special duty at Ft. Nelson, B. C., followed by three year duty at Northway, Alaska. Returning to the states he had five years of duty as first assistant at Toledo, O., then was transferred to Medford at his own request in November, 1950.

Lampkin's 10-year button was earned by his serving at stations in Cheyenne, Wyo., Prescott and Flagstaff, Ariz., Red Bluff, Calif., Elko, Nev., where he was in charge of the station for six years, and at Medford since July, 1951.

William E. Acord of the station staff previously received his 10-year award, with service dating from July, 1937, at Wolf Creek, Siskiyou Summit and Medford stations.

Shirts to Oregon's Congressmen Planned

Salem—(U.P.)—Oregon Farm Bureau directors said Friday they would take the shirts off their backs and mail them to Oregon's congressional delegation in protest against recent increases in taxes. Attached to each shirt will be this note:

"You are taking about everything we have in taxes except my shirt, and you might as well have that, too."

The 22 Oregon directors said the shirt-mailing move started with the California Farm Bureau Federation and farm bureaus in other states are following suit—or rather shirt.

Missing Woodburn Boys at Tournament

Eugene—(U.P.)—Their school wasn't entered in the tournament, but five youths from the state school for boys at Woodburn decided they'd go to see the prep basketball championships here this week-end.

All five were picked up in downtown Eugene Friday morning as fugitives from the state institution.

"We wanted to see the basketball games," one said.

An officer spotted them because they were wet and without coats.

He nabbed one immediately but the others spread out and it took police about an hour to make a complete roundup.
