As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

2ND WIFE PLAYS ROLE OF MOTHER FOR SPITE

O. "I have been divorced for several years and my husband has remarried. Our children are of high school age and have always made their home with me. This second wife goes out of her way to introduce herself to the children's friends and their parents as their stepmother. The children resent this very much. Is it proper for her to do this and, if not, what can I do about it?"

Troubled Mother.

A. Your husband's second wife is legally your children's stepmother. And, because that is her legal status, it is proper for her to call herself by that name.

But because she has assumed none of the duties and responsibilities of a mother, she is sailing under false colors.

What her motive for this is, I don't know. Perhaps she would like to play the role of mother to them and feels that by calling herself "stepmother," she may someday be able to play that role.

The chances are more likely, it is a form of spite. She knows the children resent their father's divorce and remarriage. The fact they have always made their home with you has made that clear to her.

Therefore, out of spite, she has tried to embarrass them before their friends. Calling herself their "stepmother," announces the fact that their father preferred her to you. And because children, even of high school age, rarely hide their feelings, she is well aware that what she is doing gets under their skin.

Nothing She Can Do

There is nothing that you or your children can do to put a stop to it. If you put up a protest or tell her that it embarrasses the children, you will play right into her hands.

It would be much better for the children if you and they simply ignored it. No matter how you feel, keep your feelings under such good control that no one will sense them. If she finds she no longer gets a rise, this woman may stop calling herself "stepmother."

If you have a problem about family or friend, ask Dr. Hurlock to help you. Write in care of this newspaper.

Seattle—(U.P.)—Cobbler Jim Lobdell is the champion clam eater of Seattle.

Lobdell upset the clam buck-et and defeated former world champion Joe Gagnon, 138-129, in the five-minute gastronomic gulping eatoff here Saturday.

Lobdell, a 198-pounder, now goes into the world championships here next Saturday against Israel Weintraub, New Jersey champion, who arrives here Thursday.

The world record is held by Dick Taylor, Bellevue, who gulped 272 clams in 10 minutes last year.

PARENTS PLEASE LISTEN. GRANDPARENTS KEEP OUT OF THIS

As a parent I suppose it is a little late to horn in on the discussion. As a grandparent I shall keep my trap closed. As a well-meaning but inept family doctor I was the flop of the century. As a health expert, well, now, children, what do you want to know?

About the farce of football in high school? Must we go all over that again? I have told you many times that football is a game for grown men, not for growing boys, and therefore the game should be played only by men of college or university age.

Fifteen years ago the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, having consulted with the National Education Association and the American Medical Association, condemned the practice of interschool athletic competition below high school. Very good, considering the noise football enthusiasts make any one propose to curb their activities.

Elmer D. Mitchell clearly points out one of the fundamental evils of interscholastic athletics in junior high school, in the Bulletin of the University of Michigan School of Education (Nov. '31):

"The selection of a few early maturing athletic stars is made at the expense of a sports program for all the pupils."

If it happens that such an early maturing athletic star is your son, and your compensation for an inferiority complex, it's just fine, isn't it? You don't want your boy to be a nobby pambly. You want him to get in there and take whatever hard knocks are necessary to make a man of him. You windbag.

If the youngster in his eagerness to do his bit and more if possible for team, school, coach and cheering crowd happens to sustain some trifling but repeated damage to intervertebral discs, joint cartilage or growth cartilage, the immediate disability may be temporary but ultimate results may handicap the boy for years or permanently. I'm not just croaking about it, but quoting the statement of a distinguished orthopedic surgeon.

Whenever any outsider or any adviser other than the regular teachers is permitted to take a hand in the athletic program of the school, you may be sure your boy's welfare is unimportant—unless he happens to be an athletic star, and even so, his welfare is secondary to the honor and glory of the team, school or coach.

Gust of Wind Blows Tree on Logger

Hillsboro—(U.P.)—Wesley Ward, about 33, was killed Tuesday when a gust of wind blew a tree on him. The tree was being cut by another logger on Roundup mountain near Timber.

Coroner Graham Young said Ward had started to cut on a tree about 80 feet from a tree on which Ben Berger of Forest Grove was working when a gust of wind caused Berger's tree to fall the wrong way. Ward was prevented from hearing Berger's warning shouts and whistles by his own power saw, Young said.
