In the April issue, a page is devoted to ways of saving the scent of lavender with directions by Mrs. John Holst of Butte Falls. The ideas include a lavender fan and lavender clothes hangers for which complete instructions are given. In the March issue of Sunset, a column is given to a recipe by Mrs. Edward C. Niles, 2511 Hillcrest road. The recipe is for a filbert pie and the magazine includes instructions for making the filling, as well as the glaze and wafer crump crust.

Children's Room Of City Library Displays Egg Tree

Those who visit the children's department of Medford library this week will see as part of the department's spring decorations a novel Easter egg tree. The tree was made by children of the sixth grade in Howard school and presented to the library department. The tree was fashioned from the bare branches of a bush, silvered, and the gaily decorated eggs are hung from the branches by ribbons. The eggs were blown before being colored. Although the Easter egg trees are somewhat a rarity, it was stated at the library that in past years they have been fashioned by children in a few of the county's schools.

The Howard school children found the idea for their Easter egg tree in the Katherine Milhous book, "The Egg Tree." In the foreword to her book, Mrs. Milhous acknowledges that she received the idea from Carrie May Umberger Palgrave. Mrs. Palgrave, it seems, made her first Easter egg tree many years ago for her own children. Each year the tree was larger and had more eggs decorating its branches. Last year the tree was so large that hundreds of eggs hung from its branches and it was displayed by the Historical Society of Birks County, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Nora McKay, children's librarian, invites all children to visit the department and see the tree.
