

GOES WESTERN—Senator Estes Kefauver switches from coonskin cap to 10-gallon western style hat as he arrives in Dallas, Tex., to address the attorney generals' conference.

Officers Candidate Schools To Open To Air Personnel

Both men and women on active duty in the United States Air Force who have completed high school may apply for officers' candidate school on May 1, according to M. Sgt. Virgil U. Garver, station commander of the Medford recruiting office. High school graduates enlisting in the Air Force may make applications while they are taking their basic training at Parks Air Force base, Oakland, Cal. Female applicants will continue to go to Lackland Air Force base, San Antonio, Texas, Garver said, and male personnel on active duty in the air force may also make application for pilot or observer training.

Graduates May Apply
Garver also noted that high school graduates may apply for OCS school from the local recruiting station before they enlist, provided they are between the ages of 18½ and 28 years, without regard to dependency status or prior service. This enlistment is for a period of two years.

On the college level, he pointed out that "because of the critical need for specialists, the Fourth Air Force will grant direct commissions to approximately 300 graduates possessing the necessary qualifications," according to the commanding general of the Fourth Air Force.

Garver said the general cited the greatest need being for officer specialists in communications, procurement and production, special investigation, legal, weather, psychological warfare, engineering and scientific fields.

OSC Journalism Head Named for New Post
Corvallis (U.P.)—Fred M. Shideler, for 20 years head of the Journalism department at Oregon State college, Wednesday was named director of a newly-created office of information at the school.

Shideler, who has been director of the college news bureau since 1950, will continue as head of the Journalism school. Samuel H. Bailey, who has been on the teaching staff for five years, becomes head of the news bureau and assistant professor of Journalism.

Kefauver Will Enter South Dakota Primary
Washington (U.P.)—Sen. Estes Kefauver's campaign headquarters said Wednesday the Tennessee Democrat will enter the South Dakota primary June 3 with a bid for the state's eight votes at the Democratic National Convention.

Harvey Wirtz, a campaign aide, is in the state now lining up the slate of delegates which must be filed by May 3.
