CD Radio System Has First Western Tests

Seattle—(U.P.)—A new civil defense radio system known as "conelrad" was given its first test early Saturday by radio stations in all western states.

"Conelrad" is short for control of electro-magnetic radiation. It is a system intended to prevent enemy planes from "homing" in on target cities by monitoring radio stations.

Radio stations were divided into two or more groups and each group was assigned a new frequency for civil defense purposes.

Rogue valley radio stations including KMED, KWIN and KYJC, participated in operation "conelrad" on Saturday morning, according to the station managers.
