Your Health and Its Care

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Readers should address inquiries to: William Brady, 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Cal.

THE DOCTOR JUST STRINGS HIM ALONG

A man aged 57 says his doctor told him he had a heart murmur. He used to go to church regularly and do whatever in reason he wanted to, but since the doctor told him about the heart murmur he has a fixed idea that he is in bad shape.

Dr. Brady

So far it seems sane enough, but what follows makes me wonder whether the man is pulling my leg or whether he is a victim of iatrogenic heart disease — you know, if you're a regular reader of this column, that is heart trouble engendered by the doctor.

If the doctor told the man he (the doctor) detected a "murmur" when he listened to the heart, and gave no opinion as to the significance or insignificance of the "murmur," I'd advise the man to have no further truck with the charlatan.

To say a person has a "murmur"—a humming or blowing sound heard in addition to or in place of one of the normal heart sounds—is not a diagnosis. In effect it is just a way to evade responsibility to the patient or the patient's family.

I hope every victim of this wretched trick will take this statement of mine to the doctor who sold him the "murmur" and ask him to explain himself. If not that, then I hope the victim will light his lantern and go out and search for an honest doctor.

The doctor who tells a patient the patient has a "murmur" and doesn't tell the patient what it means is on the same low level as the doctor who dismisses a patient with assurance that the illness or indisposition is "just a cold."

It is easy for me to say that the doctor should be honest enough to say: "I don't know yet what your trouble is. I'll have to study your case or observe developments in order to make a diagnosis."

But I don't know whether I'd dare to be as frank as that in practice. I tried it when I was young and innocent and my patients lost no time changing doctors. They wanted a doctor who pronounced the trouble a "murmur" or "a bad cold" right off the bat.

Seriously, when it comes to the question of heart trouble, it is downright cruel to inflict on a patient the idea that he is "in bad shape" just because the doctor heard or imagines he heard a "murmur."

This man closes his doleful letter by saying:

"I have never been to a doctor since—I'm afraid of what he may tell me."

Is that sensible? If the man doesn't go to a doctor he will go on nursing his "murmur" indefinitely. On the other hand, if he consults a doctor there is at least a fair chance he will learn that there's nothing the matter, after all. In some instances, notwithstanding the old saying, no news is not good news.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Food for Diabetics

Are there any books or pamphlets on preparation of food for diabetics? My husband has recently learned he has diabetes and I don't know the first thing about diet. (Mrs. B. G.)

Answer—GOOD FOOD FOR DIABETICS, by Eleanor Recod Sigel, published by Harper & Bro. $2.50, is excellent. Best down to earth guide book for diabetics is A BOOK FOR US DIABETICS, by Don H. Duffie, M.D. published by the author, Central Lake, Mich. $2.25. For the millions of potential diabetics (inherited tendency) there is the booklet TRAINING FOR DIABETES, by the old geek who conducts this column—for a copy send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gastric Bloated Feeling

Have you a pamphlet for the person who is always complaining of gastric bloated feeling? (L. M.)

Answer—Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (clipping will not suffice) for pamphlet YANKEE STOMACH. The word GASTRIC (derived from the Greek GASTER) means stomach, whether the stomach contains too much gas, just the usual or normal amount or none at all.

Barbital

Among the poison drugs you mentioned barbiturate. Is Barbital taken to quiet the nerves the same?

(Mrs. S. A.)

Answer—Barbital is one of the barbituric acid derivatives—all the drugs in this class are called barbiturates. Others are phenobarbital, amytal neonal, seconal, dial, alurate, ipral pentothal veronal, medinal, luminal nembutal—and what have you.

On The Side

By E. V. Durling

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Mini Gerard, blonde chanteuse and currently one of the darlings of Paris, can sing in sixteen languages, including Chinese. "I also know the language of the eyes," says Mini, I hope some enterprising Manhattan night club maestro engages Mini. I would like to hear her sing the chorus of "Won't You Come and Play With Me?" in sixteen languages. It should be especially interesting when sung in Chinese or perhaps inasmuch as Mini is proud of her knowledge of the language of the eyes she should sing "I Just Can't Make My Eyes Behave." Then she could use all the languages she knows.

Horses & Women

Now I am in a spot. My membership in the Husbands Protective Association is endangered. My loyalty is being put to a severe test. To hand is a communication signed by five young matrons of Beaumont, Tex. They swear eternal affection. They even go so far as to state I am "a wonderful guy." They express a fervent hope the Dodgers will win the pennant. They say my dog "really must be a very remarkable animal." And then they add the following P. S.: "Eddie, honey: Would you please stop telling husbands they shouldn't help with the housework? We've just got ours housebroken."

Song Is Born

It is extremely interesting to not the unusual number of song ideas inspired by passing remarks. Lee Dempsey, of Los Angeles, is a former umpire. His wife Evelyn is a songwriter. At a party Lee was asked by a baseball enthusiast if after making a bad decision he ever tried to even it up by giving the sufferers a break on another decision. "Never," said Lee. "Two wrongs don't make a right." Mrs. Dempsey cried out: "That's an idea for a song title." So in collaboration with Sammy Kahn she wrote a song titled "Two Wrongs Don't Make a Right." The song, recently launched, is doing fine.

Unusual Legislation

If a Californian lives on a street used for public transportation, i.e. bus or street car, he can legally compel the vehicles to stop for him in front of his house instead of having to go to the trouble of walking to the corner. That's what Dick Hyland, student of unusual legislation, claims. So, if you are a Californian situated like that, try to get the bus or street car to stop in front of your house, and see what happens. Then if it doesn't stop, consult your lawyer. If your lawyer says the vehicle does not have to stop according to law, then you tell Dick Hyland I said he owes you a stogie.

Passing By

Jake Ehrlich, Brilliant legal light from San Francisco. Some people say Jake is even more brilliant than the picturesque Los Angeles barrister, Jerry Giesler. If Jake ever opposes Jerry in a case that will be a real legal "gigantic."

Asking

Queries from clients. Q. If your Horses & Women experts can forget about women for a minute, please have them advise a couple of argumentative fellows what the weight is of Britain's leading jockey, Gordon Richards. A. Richards rides at 113 pounds. Just about the same as Eddie Arcaro. Q. What became of Frau Herman Goering? Is it a fact she has been put to work on helping clean up rubbish piles made by wartime bombers? A. Frau Goering was for a period made to do the type of work you mention. However, she is now living in comfort in a flat in Munich.

Get It Right

Note the origin of the term "Tin Pan Alley" credited to "an obscure newspaperman." The originator was Monroe H. Rosenfield, who was anything but obscure. He was one of the best-known men on Broadway. He was a critic of popular songs for a New York newspaper. Ran a column of song reviews. However, that was just a side issue. He was a prolific composer. He wrote hundreds of songs, among them "Johnny Get Your Gun," "While Strolling Through the Park One Day," "She Was Happy Till She Met You," "Take Back Your Gold," and "Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back." The last named was a satirical song touched with a highly cynical vein of humor. In fact, Rosenfield was very cynical and sophisticated fellow and his sentimental songs were written with tongue in the cheek. His chief diversions were horses, women and poker.

Menu Cards

Since mentioning the unusual size of the menu cards of Van's restaurant in Seattle I have received a number of cards from other restaurants. The most beautiful and impressive of these is the menu card of Charlie's Cafe Exceptional in Minneapolis. Charlie really seems to have an exceptional cafe. I am certainly going to dine there the next time I am in Minneapolis.

Shakespeare Group Takes First Steps Toward New Seats

Ashland — The first step toward completely new seating facilities in the Shakespearean festival theater in Ashland was taken Saturday afternoon, when lumber donated by John Cotton, past president of the association, was moved into the festival grounds.

Ralph Burgess, a member of the festival's building committee, said that work on the new seats would start immediately.

Four hundred two-seat benches will be constructed for use in the outdoor theater this year, Burgess said, giving patrons more comfortable seats and increasing seating capacity at the same time. Most of the seats will go into the reserved section and the others will be used for overflow crowds.

The new seat was designed and built by Burgess and Dr. B. A. Cope, and approved by the board of directors last winter, after the board found it impossible to buy practical and comfortable seats for the theater. It is understood that the new benches will be assembled on the grounds by members of the Ashland Rotary club and other volunteer helpers after the pieces have been cut.

Seating has always been a major problem at the festival, and while board members are confident that the new facilities will help a great deal, they aren't certain that the problem has been completely solved. The closing performance of the festival in 1951 played to 850 persons and a large number were turned away. With a program of very popular plays and the new music program this year, the board again expects overflow houses.

The Prayer Book Cross in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park, erected in 1894, commemorates the first religious service in the English language on the Pacific Coast, held by Sir Francis Drake in 1579.
