Miss Phyllis Corliss Praised by Critics After Recent Concert

Miss Phyllis Corliss, Medford voice student attending Marylhurst college, received much favorable comment on her singing in a recent concert sponsored by the college, it is reported. Miss Corliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Corliss, 938 South Holly street, was one of two sopranos featured on the program.

The Portland Oregonian report of the concert praised Miss Corliss for her singing of a group of French art songs, saying they were performed with "a delicacy of style and almost flawless diction." An instrumental ensemble accompanied Miss Corliss in a Haydn aria, "On Mighty Pans" from "Creation" and it was in this that the potentialities of Miss Corliss' lyric voice was best realized, the critic pointed out.

The program opened with a duet, "Stabat Mater," Pergolesi, by Miss Corliss and Miss Jean Lawson, the second featured soprano and of this it was said "the tonal blend gave immediate testimony to the seriousness of the two young singers."

Mrs. Corliss was in Oregon City for the recital, held at St. John's auditorium.
