Taxes Higher Than Food Association Head States

"For the first time in our history, short of all-out war, taxes are costing us more than the food we eat," declared Paul S. Willis, President, Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., recently. "In 1951, we paid 18 billion dollars more in federal, state and local taxes than we spent for food. That means that government is costing us more than groceries."

Mr. Willis further pointed out that many people do not realize that food itself is taxed. These taxes are known as hidden taxes. For example, the companies who produce our packaged, canned and frozen foods, the transport that carries them, the markets that sell them, the manufacturers who make the packages, containers and other wrappings, are taxed in many and various ways. These taxes enter into the cost of food to the consumer. These "hidden" taxes take one dollar out of every five dollars spent in the grocery stores, he stated.

Mr. Willis said that we are all agreed that our best safeguard for world peace is a sound, healthy economy at home. Taxes that are continually on the rise indicate a condition that must be watched carefully for it is a matter of concern to each and everyone of us. As to what can be done to bring down taxes.

Mr. Willis expressed the opinion that the American people must make it plain to their representatives in Congress that every dollar appropriated must be carefully spent, that there must be no waste and extravagance.

"After all, that is what we as individuals do when our personal expenses run higher than we can afford . . . we cut out the frills and spend only what is absolutely necessary. Since our form of government is responsive to the will of citizens, public spending and taxes will be reduced only when the citizens impress upon Congress and the executive leadership that they must be. "When that is done," declared Mr. Willis, "our tax will probably no longer surpass our grocery bill."
