

Utility Accountants Opening Sessions In City Tomorrow

Delegates from British Columbia, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah and Oregon started arriving in Medford today to attend the annual conference of the accounting and business practice section of the Northwest Electric Light and Power association.

The two-day session, which will start tomorrow morning at the Medford hotel will be directed by Frank Bash, assistant treasurer of the California Oregon Power company, who is general chairman of this year's meeting. The Thursday session will be opened with a welcoming address by A. S. Cummins, president of Copco who is also president of the Light and Power association for the year ending June 30, 1952.

To Discuss Problems

The conference will be devoted to discussion of general accounting practices and problems which confront the utility business. A highlight of the meeting will be a talk on utility depreciation accounting by A. H. Kuhn, vice president of the Pioneer Service and Engineering company of Chicago, who is nationally recognized as an authority on that subject. The program will include a banquet at the Medford hotel on Thursday evening and a luncheon at the Rogue Valley Country club Friday noon.

About 65 out of town delegates representing various electric utilities in the Pacific northwest have signified their intention of attending this year's conference. Following the regular sessions, Saturday trips to points of interest around the valley and in southern Oregon have been arranged for those interested.

Pickin' Pears News, Gossip, Comment From Camp White

By SID HOLLINGSWORTH

The 800 home members at Camp White are fortunate. It is doubtful if any other Veterans Administration center receives as wholehearted support by the surrounding community through the activities of the VA's. In a little over three years, the number of groups providing entertainment, devotional exercises and assistance of one kind or another has increased from a dozen "pioneers" to five dozen regular patrons. They will be awarded certificates of recognition at the national exercises in the Elks Temple, Medford Wednesday night.

With a regular run of three movie shows a week, the schedule allows very little time for home talent acts and those that have been provided have been, as well received as the regular run of pictures. There is always a request for a return engagement. Needless to say the 60 or so groups and individuals coming long distances in some cases to Camp White can't all appear regularly in stage shows, but the fact that 25 were reported to have participated last month is an indication of the efficient manner in which the job is handled.

Much credit for the success of the VA's effort is due to Marvin Kahn, chief of special services.

"The program got a good start here before I arrived and my work has been mainly that of development with the fine setting already established," is his appraisal of his own contribution. But there are a great many details and delicate matters which Kahn has handled with skill.

Kahn is a veteran of World War II with three years service, and was wounded in the Italian campaign. He lives on the station with his wife, a UCLA graduate, and three small children, Randy, and Freddie and Nancy, twins. He is also a former newspaper man and worked on an Omaha daily at one time.

The photographers were busy getting pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ernesti, Seattle, in their native Indian regalia after the Elks show Saturday afternoon. The new portico at the front entrance was opened on Election day. It is suggestive of Colonial style with four iron pillars supporting the little roof capped with a wrought iron railing. The job was executed by the engineering department.

Election results showed that 457 of the total registration of 843 in this district came out to vote, a little better than half. The balloting took place in the post office storeroom and the counting upstairs. Only five votes difference between Republicans and Democrats was noted, there being 231 Republicans and 226 Democrats.

Clarence Bryan, canteen manager, and Mrs. Bryan are away vacationing by automobile and will return after three weeks absence at the end of the month. They spent part of the time at his mother's home in Tennessee.

The Brewers, Mona J. and Chuck, are enlarging their cottage at Shady Cove with two additional rooms. In addition to her duties in the Demolition office, Mona writes verse for Dominews.

Another Camp White figure who looks the part is the little maestro William Tusch. He is an old school musician who says he plays the "violin" and not the "fiddle." Tusch spends his time in the Arts and Crafts lapidary working on odd varieties of agates and taking pictures, the latter accomplishment winning for him a second prize at the Hobby Fair.

Russell Fleming is going to Barnes hospital for special treatment shortly and will be missed by his bedside pals who enjoy his conversation. He comes originally from the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia. As a hobby he makes little animals and flowers out of chenille which are in great demand.

Cattle Population Brings No Worry

Salem—(U.P.)—Oregon cattle producers have nothing to beef about, says Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry, who does a peach of a pear business down Ashland way.

Newberry told the Aberdeen Angus association at its banquet here that Oregon has nothing to worry about overpopulation of cattle as long as 60 per cent of the beef consumed here must be brought in from other states.

There are now 88 million head of cattle in the United States, and that's a lot of T-bones, short ribs and stew. But the human population is increasing at a rate higher than that of the beef population, so a careful cattleman can expand with knowledge there will be more than ample market for his product.

Laundrymen Slate '53 Conclave Here

The 1953 convention of the Oregon Laundry Owners' association will be held in Medford next year, on May 21, 22 and 23, it was announced today by Al Dumas, of Domestic Laundry and Cleaners.

Dumas returned yesterday from the 1952 convention of the organization held in Eugene, at which he was elected president of the statewide group.

Some 150 members attended this year's meeting, and between 150 and 200 are expected at the 1953 convention, he said.

Peach Mildew Spray Recommended by Agent

A spray application for peach mildew was recommended yesterday by County Horticulturist C. B. Cordy.

A sulphur spray or dust should be applied now, Cordy said, with six pounds of wettable sulphur to each 200 gallons of water.

The agent pointed out that last year was the first year that mildew caused commercial damage to the peach crop and that those affected could control it with the above application.

Hubbard Ore.—(U.P.)—Flames swept the Hubbard yard of the Long Bell lumber company Monday night causing an estimated $30,000 damages.
