Grandmother, 78, Needs Family's Extra Tolerance... (Q) "About 10 years ago grandmother who is now 78 years old, used to spend her leisure time knitting, reading the newspapers, doing crossword puzzles, and a bit of gardening. She also prepared the meals, made beds and dusted. Now, 10 years later, she has no interest whatever in these things. She constantly sits at the window, taking notice of everything. The neighborhood children annoy her so much, my mother and I live downstairs from her and every move we make, she must be told about. Naturally we take her age into consideration but at times it is quite hard not to fly off the handle. Any advice you could give us would be deeply appreciated."

When people become senile, they are like children. Things they formerly enjoyed and things their interest in, they now ignore. Like children, they are hurt if they do not get answers to their questions. Your grandmother will doubtless forget within 10 minutes anything you tell her so you don't have to worry about her gossiping to the neighbors about your affairs. Make Last Years Peaceful. The wisest and kindest thing to do is to make your grandmother do last years as peaceful and happy as possible, no matter how great the personal sacrifices you and your mother must make. Never lose your temper, no matter how aggravating she is and
