Fishermen's Haul Decidedly Dangerous

Blaine, Wash.—(U.P.)—Crewmen of the fishing boat White Eagle thought they had made a real haul Thursday.
Fishing in Georgia Strait, their nets seemed to weigh a ton. But when they finally pulled their "catch" on deck they decided it wasn't anything to brag about.
It was an aerial depth charge containing 30 pounds of high explosives.
The White Eagle made full speed to Blaine where a hurried call was made to the bomb disposal officer of the 13th Naval district in Seattle. The Navy crew arrived and exploded the depth charge in a large gravel pit.

Acheson Praised For Treaty Job
Washington—(U.P.)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson returned from Europe Friday to receive President Truman's congratulations for a "wonderful and successful job" in negotiating West German peace agreements.
Greeting the Secretary as he stepped from the presidential plane, Independence, Mr. Truman said Acheson has made "a great contribution . . . to the peace of the world."
Responding to the President's greeting, Acheson agreed that the West German agreements, signed last week, mean "very much" to the United States and the peace of the free world.

Action Threatened in Timberland Hearing

Oregon City—(U.P.)—Clackamas County Commissioner Bob Jones has threatened to bring mandamus proceedings against County Assessor Rufus E. Woods to force revisions in the county's timberland assessment procedures.
Jones claimed that the assessor has not used available data during his 15 1/2 years in office to set up proper timberland assessments.
Woods also was under attack from the board of equalization for refusing to submit personal property assessment declarations. He said the data was confidential, on the advice of a state tax commission attorney.

Around Hollywood

Hollywood—(U.P.)—Ennio Pinza decided Thursday his debut as a screen lover a year ago was "unfortunate" because the pictures tried to type him as a "South Pacific" romeo.
The handsome opera star is back in the movies, at 20th Century Fox studio, to portray another opera singer in a long-hair music movie, "Tonight We Sing."
This time he sings opera and doesn't kiss any curvy movie queens.
But he's "happier," he says, than he was imported by MGM as the greatest wooer on celluloid after his stage success in "South Pacific."
Neither critics nor ticket buyers turned handshakes over Pinza's "Mr. Imperium" and "Strictly Dishonorable" and "Stories Unbelievable."
"The stories were unbelievable," Pinza shrugged. "If you are not capable of catching an audience by the throat you don't do anything."
"In 'Mr. Imperium' I was supposed to send a friend to Lana Turner's dressing room to ask her for a date with me. Their love in the picture was too philosophical. You don't talk like that to a woman if you want to make love to her."
"The love affair in 'South Pacific' between the older man and young girl was human. It was believable. They saw me in 'South Pacific' and they tried to base the movies on that. You'd think all I'd ever done was sing 'Some Enchanted Evening.'"
"I do a love story again, yes, but it has to be a sensible love story, not a freak. Everyone thinks of Lana Turner as a baby."
MGM paid Pinza $50,000 to wait until votes from the box-office came in. The studio offered him a one-picture contract, he said. But negotiations ended in and Pinza went back to New York television. He returned to Hollywood only for "Tonight We Sing," which he had signed for six years ago.

A Nichols' Worth of Comment On This and That

BY HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Feature Writer

Washington—(U.P.)—A little old lady in a mourning veil knelt before the tomb, crossed herself and said a quiet prayer.
Sgt. Willard Traylor, Cynthiana, Ky., kept his eyes straight ahead.
The sergeant is one of the honor guard before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington Cemetery.

Harman Nichols

There are 168 volunteer enlisted men assigned to the task and come snow, rain, sleet, or high wind they keep a 24-hour vigil every day in every year of their assignment.
Pfc. Monte Bristow, Shepardsville, Ky., summed it up for the rest when he said:
"That fellow out there represents the Army and the American people respect. The folks who come out here don't come out to sightsee. They come to pay homage to a symbol of our country. Every day is Memorial Day before that tomb over there."
The private took off his white gloves and pointed to the inscription on the tomb:

"Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God."
During the daytime the soldiers pace up and down a short ramp in front of the tomb. They march for one hour and are off the next three. At each end they halt, make a half-turn to face the tomb, click their heels and bring their rifles up smartly to port arms. Then they count slowly to 20, pause a second and count to 20 again. Then they do an about face and return to the other end and repeat the performance. Only one man marches at a time.
During the night, the corps is on for two hours and off four. There are three shifts.
Soldiers' Well Screened
All the men are from Company A, Fort Myer, Va., members of the Third Infantry regiment.
The soldiers are well screened. They volunteer for the assignments.
They must not be over five feet 11 inches tall. They're fine looking boys, slender but muscular. Their carriage, of course, is precise.
"While on duty, out of respect for the dead, we are not allowed to speak to anyone," said Pfc. Ted Manolukas, Youngstown, O.
"Most people have enough respect not to speak to us."

Stranger Brings Gift; Takes Cash, Diamonds
Richmond, Calif.—(U.P.)—Tavern owner Fred Barotti said Friday he will beware of strangers bearing gifts.
Barotti said a man carrying flowers "from the church" rapped on his door Thursday and told him he had won a $25 savings bond in a contest.
When Barotti admitted the stranger, the man tied up Barotti and his wife and robbed them of $5,400 in cash and diamonds.
