

Taft's Headquarters Anxiously Awaiting South Dakota Result

By LYLE C. WILSON
Washington — (U.P.)—Taft-for-President headquarters was braced for bad news Wednesday as South Dakota resumed counting ballots in this campaign year's last presidential primary.

Sen. Robert A. Taft was leading Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower by about 600 votes with a handful of decisive precincts still to be tabulated.

South Dakota has been counted Taft territory. The senator campaigned the state. The prize was only 14 votes in the Republican National Convention but prestige also was riding on the result.

With few precincts still out it was not possible for Taft to pile up the kind of lead which his supporters had hoped for and which many observers believed he needed to knock down again the argument most often used against him. It is that he lacks political sex appeal.

But Taft had made no pre-vote predictions of triumph in South Dakota. His managers hold that he already is within a few votes of the minimum 604 necessary to nominate and that win or lose in South Dakota their man is in.

Licked in California
A Taft-or-McArthur slate of delegates took a licking in California's presidential primary on the basis of incomplete but apparently firm returns. California's 70-vote delegation will be for Gov. Earl Warren on the first convention ballot and, perhaps, thereafter.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., apparently won California's and South Dakota's Democratic National Convention votes, a total of 76 which boosted his nationwide count to 251. Kefauver was opposed in both states by administration slates of delegates although President Truman withheld his direct blessing from them.

Charges of Riot Faced by Four College Students

Portland — (U.P.)—Four college students, accused of firing six pistol shots into a car occupied by a high school couple last Friday morning, Wednesday faced charges of riot.

James Collins, deputy district attorney, said Jack Saunders, 17, signed the complaint charging the four with violation of the little-used riot law. Saunders and a 17-year-old girl were parked on Portland Heights when the shots were fired. They were not injured.

Carries 15-Year Term
The riot charge is a felony and carries maximum sentence of 15 years in prison upon conviction, Collins said. He said the charge can be invoked when three or more persons act in concert committing any act of force or violence.

Originally the four youths were booked for assault with a deadly weapon, but Collins said that charge was dropped because of difficulty in proving the four accused youths knew the Saunders car was occupied.

Shooting Admitted
The four youths, who are free on bail, admitted the shooting while "playing around." They are Kent Arnoly, 20, Portland, and Michael Armstrong, 19, Oregon City, students at University of Portland; and William K. Whitlock, 18, and Robert Burdick, 19, both of Portland and students at University of Oregon.

Eight Workshops Set This Summer Session at SOC

Ashland — One of the special features of the summer session to begin June 16 at Southern Oregon college will be presentation of eight two-week workshops, according to Dr. John D. E. McAuley, director of the summer term.

The workshops are designed primarily for elementary school teachers who wish to brush up on specialized phases of teaching, Dr. McAuley explained. Visiting instructors who are authorities in the several fields will supervise the classwork.

In the first two-week period, June 16 to 27, Dr. H. S. Fowler, assistant professor of science at Southern Oregon, will offer a workshop in conservation education. Methods of emphasizing natural resource conservation will be discussed by representatives of several federal agencies and students will learn techniques applicable to classroom use.

Camp, Club Leadership
Mrs. Alen Pattison, Ashland, will also present a program of camp and club leadership during the first period. Mrs. Pattison will outline a thorough study of community recreation including direction of such groups as Boy and Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls and church organizations.

The second two-week series to be offered from June 30 to July 11 will be taught by two members of the state department of education. Dr. Walter Snyder, assistant superintendent of public instruction, will teach a workshop in education of the handicapped child. Methods of aiding such children will be studied as related to the educational process.

Floyd T. Thomas of the state department will conduct a speech correction clinic. Laboratory work with pupils having speaking difficulty will augment the regular classroom work.

The July 14 to 25 workshops will include a study of writing methods taught by Mrs. Evelyn Barker, Ashland. Special emphasis on Oregon requirements will be discussed and integration of writing into the entire language arts program will be taught.

At the same time, Miss Patricia Randles, director of the Cincinnati Children's theater, will conduct a workshop in drama for elementary teachers. Miss Randles is recognized nationally in her field and will give special attention to use of drama in relation to the school curriculum.

The final workshop series, a study of international relations July 28 to August 8, will include for elementary social studies. Dr. Ella Harkinson of Hope college, Holland, Mich., will discuss development of understanding concerning peoples of the world and a study of the United Nations.

Marjorie W. Priger of the state department of education will also present a course in remedial and diagnostic reading. Discussion of speech difficulties and other reading blocks will be presented toward improvement of reading rate and comprehension.

President, Family Lavishly Entertain Vets at White House

Washington — (U.P.)—It was the biggest White House garden party of the spring with a 90-piece orchestra, fancy canopies shading fancy refreshments and Margaret Truman working as a waitress.

And not a social leader was on the guest list, unless you would regard Cpl. William Hart, Groton, Conn., as a social leader. Corporal Hart lost a leg in Korea.

Veterans Treated
President Truman and his wife treated Hart and more than 1,300 other wounded war veterans hospitalized in this area as the cream of Washington society when they entertained Tuesday at the most lavish social function since the remodeled White House was reopened.

Following a tradition established shortly after World War I by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the President entertained for the veterans for the first time since 1947. The annual function was not held while the White House was undergoing repairs.

Rests Worn in Lawn
In 90 minutes, more than 1,300 veterans wore ruts in the thick White House south lawn as they passed down the receiving line of the President, Mrs. Truman, Mrs. Wilson, members of the Cabinet and their wives and the chiefs of staff of the armed services.

As the veterans cleared the line, they were ushered to canopy-covered tables laden with cakes, cookies and massive silver tureens of chocolate and strawberry ice cream. Red Cross Gray Ladies piled the plates high and Margaret Truman was busy all afternoon serving tray after tray of lemonade to the men in wheel chairs.

Marine Amazed
Sgt. George M. Henry, York, Pa., a Marine seriously wounded in Korea, eyed the President's hard-working daughter and was amazed.

"We thought she would be high-falutin', but she isn't," he said.

And then there was Pfc. Harry Wing, Battle Creek, Mich., injured recently at Trieste, who echoed the feelings of many of his perspiring buddies as they signed Margaret Truman's lemonade.

"I thought," said Private Wing glumly, "that this was going to be a beer party."

Bodies of Two Remaining Miners Located in Cave-in Ironwood, Mich. — (U.P.)—Rescue workers Wednesday found the second and final victim of an iron mine cave-in near the spot where the body of his co-worker was found.

Found Under Rock
The body of Seraphim Zacharzewski, 56, was found under a pile of rock in Penokee iron mine. Workers said they would be able to free the body about noon.

Walls of the mine collapsed two days ago and trapped five men. Tuesday workers found the body of Gorma Olkonen, 33.

Three other miners were rescued earlier in the day after they guided the relief parties by tapping S-O-S signals on rock walls.

Mine officials said that a "full" rescue crew was still down in the mine and was exploring four sub-levels of the shaft.

About 100 diggers, split into three crews, were digging out the area where Zacharzewski was working when the cave-in rocked the mine at 1 p.m. Monday.

Escapes Make Report
An eight-man crew was working in a loading room on the 2,800 foot level of the mine when the shaft ceilings and walls began to crumble. Three escaped to safety and reported their companions missing.

The men found safe Tuesday were Victor Cox, 46, Matt Crocker, 54, and Christopher Hocking, 46.

Liquor in TV, Radio Shows Target of Prohibitionists

Washington — (U.P.)—Liquor replaced sex Wednesday as the target of a congressional investigation of allegedly immoral television and radio shows.

Prohibitionist and temperance groups urged a House Commerce subcommittee to clamp down on radio and TV programs to "protect American homes from the deluge of drunkenness sweeping the country today."

Legislation Urged
The International Order of Good Templars, in a statement prepared for the subcommittee, said that if the Federal Communications commission doesn't already have the power to curb liquor advertising and ban drinking on TV programs, Congress should step in the breach with adequate legislation.

J. Raymond Schmidt, an official of the Templars, asked: "Why permit the highly organized and financed brewing industry to bombard non-drinkers, especially teenage boys and girls, with their high pressure selling tactics over radio and television?"

Has Solution
But Rep. Arthur G. Klein, D-N.Y., a subcommittee member, told a reporter he will stick by his contention that the solution to offensive television and radio programs is to "turn the damned thing off."

Two high officers of the Knights of Pythias made a surprise visit to the Medford Talmadge lodge No. 31 at this week's meeting. They were Supreme Officer Ernest T. Johnson and Royal Viceroy H. S. "Chick" Willenbrink, both Yreka.

The officers brought with them tape recorded talks by Supreme Vice Chancellor Sheldon Roper, of Tennessee; former Gov. Merriam of California, and Supreme Chief of Pythian Sisters Cleone Hogan. The recordings were made at the grand lodge convention of California last week.

Members were reminded of the 12th annual knight rank ceremony at Yreka's Pythian cave next Saturday at 8:30 p.m. (California daylight saving time), preceded by a dinner at the hall at 6:30 p.m. DST. Any member wishing a ride was asked to be at the Pythian building, Fifth and Grape streets in Medford, between 3 and 4 p.m. Saturday Medford time. Members are to wear their fez.
