National Open Field Completed

Montclair, N.J. —(U.P.)— The field for the National Open Golf championship at Dallas, Tex., June 12 was completed with the addition of 12 players who qualified at Montclair's Golf club in the final qualifying round.

Herman Barron of White Plains, N.Y., led the final dozen qualifiers with a 72-67-139, two strokes better than Mike Turnesa of White Plains, who shot a 69-72-141. Barron engineered his 3-under-par 67 when his putter became hot.

MANGRUM FAVORED

Ardmore, Okla.—(U.P.)— Lloyd Mangrum, golf's top money winner in 1951, became a solid favorite to capture the $15,000 Ardmore Open as first round play started Thursday when Jack Burke Jr. withdrew because of a leg injury. Burke, the leading money winner this year and the sensation of the summer tour, said an old leg injury began bothering him Wednesday. He feared it might also keep him out of the National Open, which starts June 12 at Dallas.

Plane Passengers Injured as Pilot Avoids Collision

Pitsburgh —(U.P.)— Eight persons aboard a Washington to California non-scheduled airliner were injured Wednesday night when the 50-passenger plane dipped into a sharp sideslip to avoid a head-on collision with two other planes.

Capt. Henry Glaser, pilot of the North Star Lines plane, said several military planes were "buzzing around" when he entered the Pittsburgh area.

Avoids Collision

The plane was about 10 minutes out of Pittsburgh when the incident occurred.

When he saw his plane heading for two of the planes, Glaser said he sideslipped to avoid a collision and headed for Allegheny County Airport here.

"People and luggage were thrown all over," he said, "and some of the passengers landed in the aisles."

The emergency landing at the airport was described by the pilot as "smooth" although the main lights on the field were out.

Conversion of Coal Into Oil Products Seen in Near Future

Colorado Springs, Colo — (U.P.) Charles W. Connor, Defense Solid Fuels Administrator, predicts that the nation will soon be converting millions of tons of coal annually into oil, gasoline and chemicals.

In a speech prepared for the Rocky Mountain Coal Mining Institute, he said Union Carbide & Chemical Corp. already is producing chemicals on a commercial basis at a new $11,000,000 coal hydrogenation plant at Insistute, W. Va. He added that the Bureau of Mines has shown that gasoline can be produced synthetically from coal almost as cheaply as from petroleum.

Heralds of New Era

"All of these developments are heralds of the new era of broadened uses of coal which is now beginning," he said. "I believe that the time is not far distant when we will witness the consumption of millions of tons of coal annually for the production of synthetic liquid fuels and critical chemicals."

Connor said it is a good thing the nation has almost unlimited supplies of coal to rely on for oil and gasoline because it is using more oil than it has been able to produce.

He said that last year alone the United States used about 2,721,000,000 barrels of petroleum products. He noted that proved reserves of petroleum amount to only 32,000,000,000 barrels "or only about 12 times our present annual consumption."

"This situation provides a compelling argument for the development of supplementary sources of liquid fuels," he said. "In a time of emergency such as the present we are taking a dangerous risk if we do not proceed as rapidly as humanly possible to develop such a supplementary source."

Connor said the Bureau of Mines has been working for years to find such a feasible source by trying to improve on the coal-to-oil process. As a result if its studies, he said, synthetic gasoline can be made now for about 11 cents a gallon. Gasoline made from petroleum now sells for 11 or 12 cents a gallon at the refinery.

He said cost calculations are being made by the bureau on a modernized coal-to-oil plant which may cut operating costs.
