Gunman Attacks 3 Autoists in Indiana

Springfield, Ill. — (AP) — The "phantom gunman" who has terrorized Illinois highways wounded a new victim near here after apparently slipping into nearby Indiana and attacking three motorists.

Phillip Mossitt, 31, Loami,

Ill., was cut across the face, eyes and hand Monday when bullets shattered the windshield of his car. Mossitt said he was fired upon while driving along U. S. route 66 bypass south of Springfield about 7 p. m. State police said the slugs blasted two large holes in the car's window.

Indians Attacked

Earlier in the day someone driving a "dark colored car bearing Illinois license plates" fired wildly at two cars in the vicinity of Sullivan, Ind.

Sheriff Hubert Wagner speculated that the "phantom" had ranged into Indiana to continue his strange assaults. Sullivan is about 150 miles from Springfield and Wagner said the gunman would have had "plenty of time to have come here and then get back to Springfield by 7 p. m."

Wagner and his deputies searched the area of the Indiana shootings intensively and planned to continue their hunt for the gun-toting autoist Tuesday even though indications were that he had fled back to Illinois.

Report Doubtful

An unidentified woman and her daughter turned in the first report but Wagner was skeptical and did not take her name. He said the widespread publicity given the Illinois phantom might have made the woman jumpy.

The sheriff changed his mind and took action when he received another complaint five minutes later from Charles Meier, Sullivan, who told an almost identical story and said he was attacked from a car bearing Illinois license plates.
