Temple Delegation To Attend Session Of Nile Daughters

Mrs. Phil Stansbury, Ashland, queen of Zuleima temple, Daughters of the Nile, will leave this week to attend the 36th annual session of the supreme temple, to be held in Portland, Ore. She will be accompanied by 30 Zuleima patrol members, captained by Mrs. Richard Mundy, Medford, the Zuleima dancers, directed by Mrs. Evelyn Lichty, Eugene, and a corp of officers and members from the southern portion of the state.

Mrs. Thelma Small, Evansville, Ind., supreme queen, will preside at the formal opening, Monday, June 16th, at 9:30 A.M. in the Shrine hall of the Masonic temple in Portland.

Several events have been arranged for the four days to entertain the visiting delegates. This includes "A Night at Timberline" skit presented by the chorus, patrol and dancers of the hostess unit, Nydia temple, Portland, at the Civic auditorium, Sunday, June 15th at 8:00 p.m. Zuleima patrol will do an exhibition drill at the Portland Ice arena Wednesday, June 18, at 7 p.m., as will 15 participating patrols from other temples in the United States. Zuleima dancers will entertain Monday, June 16 at the "get-together" banquet to be held at the Portland Civic auditorium.

The session will close Thursday evening June 19 with the crowning of Mrs. Thomas Luke, past queen of Nydia temple, Portland, as the new supreme queen.

The next stated session of Zuleima temple will be held Saturday, June 28, at 2 p.m. in the Masonic temple, Medford, followed by a tea.

Business Women Name 1952 Winner Annual Scholarship

Miss Helen York, member of the 1952 graduating class of St. Mary's academy, has been awarded the annual scholarship of Medford Business and Professional Woman's club, it was announced yesterday. Miss York is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan York, 704 Second street, Jacksonville.

The club announces that the scholarship is awarded on the basis of financial need, character, scholarship and citizenship. A committee of citizens, associated with neither the club or the school selected the winner. Senior girls at both Medford Senior high school and St. Mary's academy are eligible for the scholarship.

Miss York has worked on the school year book, "The Lance," has been class treasurer, vice-president of Pep club and a member of the Home Craft club Camera club. She has also done Red Cross work during her school years, and has sung for many programs and recitals.

At the end of her senior year, Miss York was awarded the class scholarship medal for having the highest grade point average for the four years.

It is announced that Miss York will use her $250 scholarship to attend Marylhurst college near Portland.

Central Point Women Install New Officers; Plan Coming Meetings

Central Point — Central Point Garden club held the annual installation of officers at a recent meeting in the home of Mrs. Gaston Floux.

Mrs. W. B. Kincaid was installed president, and other officers of the club are Mrs. Clem Ault, vice-president; Mrs. Lloyd Seymour, recording secretary; Mrs. W. I. Sutherland, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Don Faber, treasurer; Mrs. C. W. Anhorn, historian and Mrs. L. G. Freeman, librarian. Mrs. J. E. Vincent, a past president of the club, was installing officer.

Mrs. Bert R. Elliot, retiring president, presented gifts to the officers who served with her. They were Mrs. Kincaid, Mrs. Francis Russell, Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. O. T. Wilson, Mrs. Paul Anderson and Mrs. Edward Jones. Mrs. Elliott was presented a gift from the club.

Committees reported that 100 sprays of flowers were made at Mrs. Elliott's home for use in Memorial day services. Flowers were taken to the Phoenix and Jacksonville shows, a 4-H club summer school scholarship, and a Girl Scout campship were given by the club.

Mrs. Kincaid announced her standing committees.

Mrs. Floux was assisted by Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Anderson. New members introduced were Mrs. D. O. Fredericks, and Mrs. Everett Young. Mrs. Glenn Downing was a guest. Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. K. C. Wernmark received prizes.

Plans were made for a picnic to be held Thursday evening, June 19, at the Elliott home. This event is for members and their husbands. Next meeting of the club will be at the Ault home July 2.

To Install

Central Point — The public is invited to attend installation ceremonies for officers of the Central Point Jobs Daughters Thursday, June 12 at 8 p. m. in the Masonic hall.

Oregon's High Country Motorlog Traverses the Land of Big Men

Wide Ranchlands Plus Tall Timber Form an Empire

The following is a condensation of a motorlog appearing in the May 25 Sunday Oregonian, the Northwest's own magazine. It is one of a series sponsored by The Oregonian and the Oregon State Motor association.

BY PAUL HAUSER
Staff Writer, The Oregonian

Hanging from one of the many hooks that dot the ceiling of the Frenchglen general store and postoffice is a pair of worn, but still serviceable boots—Superman size.

When old Peter French, the founder and settler of Frenchglen and the meadows and marshes of the Blitzen river valley, ran the store way back when, the hooks bore a heavier load. They say the customers had to duck and stoop to make their way past the saddles, the ropes, the buggy wheels and whatnot suspended from the ceiling.

Wes Frank, the present proprietor and postmaster, has left the hooks where they were, though he displays merchandise on proper shelves.

"People keep asking about them and they make something to talk about," said Wes.

We were in Frenchglen, some 65 miles south of Burns, on one leg of an Oregon State Motor association—The Oregonian motorlog.

For us Frenchglen, the former stomping ground of old Peter French and the main seat of his great P ranch, was a turnaround point on an excursion through the great "beef bowl" of central Oregon.

All the way south, the snow-covered Steens mountains, rising a mile or so above the mean level of the central Oregon plateau, were a backdrop.

This is country fishermen know, for the mountain streams and lakes are well populated. The old frame Frenchglen hotel is a headquarters for anglers. This season it is under new management, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Pruitt, who used to live at Grants Pass.

After Frenchglen and a look at Pete French's chimney and a regret that the great round barn, whose outer circuit served as a winter hippodrome for breaking horses, is no longer standing, we lickety-splitted back to Burns in time for a late lunch.

Burns is a cow town and a lumber town and of itself isn't much to see, but stick around just a little while and you'll find yourself talking to some leathery faced cowman who could have stepped right out of the pages of a western novel.

Here at breakfast we had run into Lew Willard, Iowa-born, who swears there's no place in the world like the country around Burns—the sagy rangeland and the alfalfa meadows watered by the Silvies river. He's a home on the range man, for sure.

The hurried traveler, moving across the state on U. S. 20, can't but wonder how it happens that at Hines, hard by Burns, is a great lumber mill, one of the largest in the state. The answer is on the road from Burns to John Day, as you climb into the Blue mountains and their forests of pine.

You pass through an extension of the Malheur national forest as you go up from Burns and then into another of the green irrigated valleys. Off the road a way is Silvies.

The Silvies river was roaring as we passed through. It had already put much of the land around Burns awash. The promise of the heavy snows that caused it was for a green summer, and rich, heavier grass for the cattle.

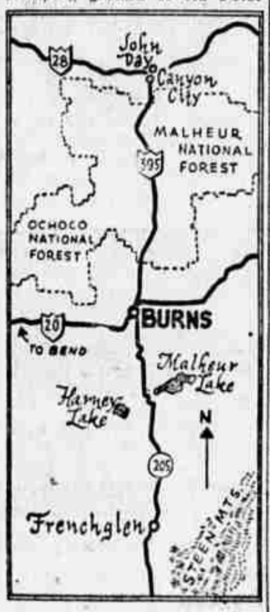
Just before Canyon creek pours into the John Day river lies Canyon City. Before you come to it you spot along the canyon slopes the diggings and now and then a time-resisting section of miner's flumes that once made Canyon City a rightful claimant of the second word in its name.

It was a roaring mining town when there was still gold in them thar hills, but the veins and the pockets played out, and Canyon City is now politically a county seat and economically only an adjunct of thriving, bustling John Day a mile away.

John Day, junction point of U. S. highways 395 and 26, is a trading center for a rich cattle country. It is an in-between place on the road from Pendleton to Burns or on U. S. 26, the east-west route increasingly traveled since the stretch over the Ochoco mountains was made modern high speed highway last year.

Still more improvements are in the works or in the books for the east-west highway and John Day is set to tell more and more tourists and travelers of the beauties and riches of the valley from which it takes its name.

John Day fossil beds, many only a few hundred yards from the side of the highway and within clear view, are world famous for their archeological findings. Intriguing geological formations, above, are beautifully colored and wierdly shaped.



This week's motorlog covers area from Frenchglen north through Burns to John Day.

WIND BLOWS STRONG

Urbana, Ill. — (U.P.) — When the wind gets going in Illinois it really blows. A plane left the University of Illinois airport here for Chicago during a high wind. It arrived 39 minutes later. Without a tail wind, the flight takes about 55 minutes.

STILL GOING STRONG

Jacksonville Beach, Calif. — (U.P.) — Mrs. Agnes Arnot celebrated her 103rd birthday with a quiet party. She is up and dressed every day, visiting with the family and friends who drop by. She says, however, she is "not as active as I once was."
