

Significance and History of Flag Told to Kiwanians

Frank Van Dyke, Medford attorney, in a pre-Flag day talk to Medford Kiwanians Wednesday, stressed the importance of life and liberty.

Many people, he said, are busy in the pursuit of happiness and forget the importance of life and liberty. He brought out that a thoughtful mind sees the nation in the flag. It must be realized anew, Van Dyke stated, that one of the greatest dangers to the flag is "our own indifference." He spoke at Rogue Valley County club.

Van Dyke with the help of George Knight and Jerry Lehman, both Boy Scouts of Life rank, told the story of the flag, starting in 1497 with the red cross of England. This flag reportedly was flown by John Cabot on the first ship to land on North America.

This early flag was displayed, as were the Union Jack, the Union Jack on a banner of red, the Pine Tree flag of northern colonies, the Snake flag of southern colonies, the Continental Congress flag with Union Jack on red and white striped banner, and the 13-star, 15-star and 15-striped and 8-star flags.

Guests of the club Wednesday were Maureen Rice and Pat Lydiard, 1952 high school graduates who won Kiwanis music awards.

Club Secretary E. Ron Rice reported that, since Kiwanians placed gum machines in this area in 1948, residents of the area have chewed 1,330,262 balls of gum.

Club President Jennings Pierce said that Kiwanians will hold a breakfast meeting on Friday, July 4, and a family picnic on Wednesday, July 23 at Table Rock Estates. Rice, Pierce and Past President Robert Rector will leave Saturday for the Kiwanis International convention at Seattle.

Hormone Drug Found Useful in Regrowing Hair

Chicago — (U.P.) — Hair has been regrown in one type of baldness with the use of a hormone drug, two Chicago dermatologists reported at the American Medical Association's 101st annual meeting.

The drug, called cortisone, produced new hair for 16 patients out of 22 who were treated for alopecia areata, which causes circular patches of hair to fall out.

The doctors, Calvin J. Dillaha and Stephen Rothman, pointed out, however, that only a small percentage of the cases of baldness is due to this disease and that they did not recommend the treatment for general use.

Oral Doses Used
They said a "cosmetically satisfactory" regrowth appeared following treatment for 10 or more weeks with oral doses of cortisone.

The six cases which did not respond to treatment were those of the longest standing. Four of these had been present throughout the patient's adolescence.

Regrowth in the successful treatments was patchy, the doctors said, and the new hair fell out when the treatment was discontinued or the dosage of cortisone was reduced too much.

Real Estate Value of Farms Shows Decline

Washington — (U.P.) — The Agriculture Department had both good and bad news Wednesday for city dwellers eyeing the charms of farm life.

It said the rate of increase in farm real estate values has slowed down—a 2 per cent gain during the four months ended March was only one-fourth as much as the advance the same time a year ago—but that an acre of farm land is worth more than ever before.

Farm Demand Weakened

Rising farm production costs and lower prices for many farm products has weakened the demand for farms, the department said.

It said another factor is the large amount of capital required to buy and equip a farm.

More than two-thirds of the state reporters for the Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicted little change in farm sales prices during the next six months.

The 2 per cent gain in farm real estate values over the period pushed up to $81.64 the national per acre value of farm land—highest on record. You could have bought an "average acre" for $74.69 last year, and paid $34.26 for it 10 years ago.

Average Farm Worth $17,000

With the total dollar value of America's 1,158,000,000 farm acres and buildings now estimated at $94,800,000,000, the department said the "average farm" of 215 acres is now worth between $17,000 and $18,000. The same farm in 1950 would have cost $14,000.

The department said Southwest and Great Plains states reported the largest farm real estate gains from November to March.

State Inspectors

Of County's Bees

Are Announced

State inspection of bees in Jackson county this season is being carried on by I. O. Edwards, Ashland, and Robert H. Ridge, Gold Hill, recently appointed deputy state inspectors by the State Department of Agriculture, according to a news release from Salem.

Besides routine inspections, the are authorized to issue moving permits. Under the 1951 bee law, all colonies of bees moved any place in the state must have a permit, issued for a fee of 25 cents per colony. All bees, whether Oregon or imported, must also be registered with the department at a fee set by law of $2 for the beekeeper and 25 cents for each colony owned or in possession of the beekeeper.

Need Certificates

Any bees coming into the state—and department officials estimate about 15,000 colonies from other states will move in on a rental basis for crop and orchard pollination this season—may come in on state inspection certificates but when they leave Oregon they must have a moving permit.

Under a new California regulation, bees coming in from that state and remaining for more than 60 days after their last inspection must have a new inspection certificate before leaving Oregon to show freedom from American foulbrood and other bee diseases. Such inspections are made on the basis of time and per diem for the inspector.

Most of the imported bees will enter Jefferson or Klamath counties for seed, pollination rentals.

4-H Leaders Plan

Picnic on June 15

The Jackson County 4-H Club Leaders association will hold its June meeting at the Elks picnic ground, starting at 12 noon, Sunday, June 15, according to R. N. Cate Jr., county 4-H extension agent.

A potluck picnic lunch will be started at 1 p.m., with each leader furnishing food and utensils for his own group.

The agent also said that two members of the Kilty band at Ashland have tentatively agreed to provide entertainment at the gathering, and E. A. Mallory has also indicated some special event in honor of Father's day will take place.
