

Ceremony Weds German Bride, Army Corporal

Miss Marianne Schober, Munchen, Germany, became the bride of Charles N. Kjensmo of Medford in a ceremony held May 31 in the Assembly of God church. The Rev. J. S. Manchester performed the marriage ceremony, with about 100 guests present.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benno Schober of Munchen, came from Germany for the wedding, and has been a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Erickson, 815 Cedar street, with whom the bridegroom made his home for many years. The bridegroom, a corporal in the United States army, recently returned to this country after spending 39 months in Germany, and is to be discharged from service later this month.

The church was decorated with baskets of garden flowers for the ceremony. Preceding the rites Mrs. Lloyd Parsons sang, accompanying herself, and also played the wedding marches.

The bride wore a gown of white taffeta designed with train and her veil was finger-tip length. She carried white peonies and rose buds. Miss Marion Anderson was maid of honor and Miss Elaine Sorum was bridesmaid. Miss Anderson's gown was of pink brocade and orquid and Miss Sorum wore pale lavender net and taffeta. Their bouquets were of roses.

Pamela Jones and Deanna Arnold were flower girls, and Gary Bendickson was ring bearer. The candles were lighted by Norma Jeanne Bendickson and Sharon Erickson, wearing identical blue taffeta dresses.

Ray Anderson escorted the bride to the altar, and Pome Roy Sorum served as best man for Mr. Kjensmo. Donald Erickson and Donald Jacobs were ushers. The reception was held in the church annex. Mrs. Ray Anderson cut the wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Kjensmo were married May 31 in the Assembly of God church. The bride, the former Marianne Schober, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benno Schober, Munchen, Germany, came from Munchen only a short time ago. The bridegroom recently returned to the United States after having spent 39 months in Germany. He is a corporal in the army.

Extension Specialist Explains What To Do In Freezer Emergency

If your home freezer stops running and will be off for some time, do not open immediately to see what is happening to the food, say specialists of the Oregon Home Extension service. By keeping the freezer closed, food will usually stay frozen in a full cabinet for two days. When a cabinet is less than half full, the food will not stay frozen more than a day. The larger the freezer, the longer the food will stay frozen.

When such an emergency arises, first determine the cause and estimate how long the outage will last. Then estimate how long the food will remain frozen. You can now plan how best to handle the problem. If food is likely to thaw before service is regained, arrangements may be made with a local locker plant to care for the food in the emergency. To move, the food should be wrapped in plenty of newspaper and blankets or put into insulated boxes and rushed to the locker plant.

If locker space is not available and the freezer is likely to be stopped for more than a day, dry ice may be used to keep the temperature down. The more you use, the longer the food will keep frozen. Fifty pounds will keep the temperature down to 15° F. for about two days in the average freezer. Use gloves when handling dry ice, the extension service warns.

When using dry ice, move any food from the freezing compartment to the storage area of the freezer. Put heavy cardboard directly on the packages of frozen food and then put the dry ice on top of the cardboard.

Blankets or quilts are sometimes wrapped around the freezer as added insulation. When this is done, be sure to pin them so that the air-vent openings are uncovered. If the power should come on unexpectedly, ventilation will be needed.

Shakespearean Auditions, Casting Due During Week; Familiar Faces Expected

Ashland — Come rain, wind or snow, auditions for the 12th annual Oregon Shakespearean festival will begin in the festival theater on Pioneer street in Ashland Monday.

Tryouts will continue into Tuesday evening, after which Producing Director Angus Bowmer and his staff will cast all four plays for the coming season.

Regular rehearsals for festival plays will begin Wednesday afternoon, and following a unique custom at the southern Oregon event, will be open to the public.

Familiar Faces
Among those auditioning for festival roles Monday and Tuesday will be many familiar to valley audiences. The four play directors, Angus Bowmer, Richard Graham, Philip Hanson, and Allen Fletcher, have all acted and directed here before.

Four of the nine scholarship winners for the 1952 season were also in the 1951 company. They are Bill Ball, Carnegie Tech; Paul Reinhardt, University of Texas; Bill Oyster, Stanford university, and Paul Kliss, Buhl, Ida., and Ashland. Many others are also expected to return for the plays.

Registration for the festival's new music program, as well as for the plays, will begin at 10 a. m. Monday, with play auditions set for 2 p. m. Hans Lempi, music director, has not yet set audition time for his musicians, but it is thought that he will audition both vocal and instrumental musicians throughout the week.

Most of the musicians in the new program are expected to come from this area. At the same time, although many outsiders will come here to vie for dramatic roles, Bowmer said he expected the biggest turn-out of theater in the east.

Lakewood, Me. — (U.P.) — Anyone who has the idea that the summer — time country stock theater is a relatively modern invention should not air his ignorance here. The Lakewood Theater began its 52nd year on June 7. It is the oldest such theater in the east.
