

Author of Defense Book Leaves After Visit Here

Sylvian G. Kindall, retired army officer and author of a new book, "Total Atomic Defense" has left for California after having visited his sister, Mrs. J. R. Williams, Medford, and other relatives in the county. Colonel Kindall will return Thursday for another brief stay and then will go to Washington to visit other relatives.

Colonel Kindall has said that his purpose in writing the book is solely to warn residents of America to the possibilities of what can happen if another world war occurs. Of the book the editors wrote, "This book grimly warns that air-raid shelters, corps of volunteer fire fighters and stretcher bearers and other measures of TNT bomb defense borrowed from London will be woefully inadequate to cope with the savagery of the atomic bomb—a missile more powerful than all the thousands of TNT bombs dropped upon London during World War II."

Theme of Book

Theme of the colonel's book is his belief that this country should prepare for atomic warfare by removing strategic plants and factories from the heart of large cities and re-settling them on the perimeters of the cities. The former officer says there are 837 cities in the United States with more than 15,000 population, and he has computed how much it would cost to remove "target plants" and put them elsewhere. Medford, Ore., is included in the list he publishes.

Colonel Kindall, who served in the infantry during both World Wars, was in Russia and Siberia during World War I and his first book was entitled "American Soldiers in Siberia."

Colonel Kindall has a niece and two nephews living in the county. They are Mrs. A. E. Anderson, Shady Cove, Keith Williams, Central Point and Glen Williams, Eagle Point.

The Reeds watched our repairman give their telephone a thorough check-up as he made sure they'd continue to enjoy good service.

Life story of the Reed's telephone

Over the years, they've found their service extremely high in value—unusually low in cost

When a routine test spotted possible trouble on the Reed's telephone, one of our repairmen promptly stopped by to make sure they'd continue to have their usual dependable service. It seemed an ordinary job to us. Then Mrs. Reed told us how much she has appreciated the way we've taken care of their telephone since it was installed many years ago. And she told about some of the many memorable calls it has carried over the years. Here are a few:

1. The very first call, when they bought their new home, was to her family. How thrilled they were to hear familiar voices across many miles. It was a great moment, too, when Mr. Reed called from his office to tell her of his first promotion. And when the baby came, dependable telephone service, of course, meant more than ever.

2. Many unforgettable calls came to them from military camps. And later, it was an unexpected telephone call from the airport that told them their son was safely home. Mrs. Reed was so excited she was still calling the neighbors when he walked in the door. That was one day she could have hugged the telephone for being on the job.

3. A call from the hospital told them they had a grandson. And in between such telephone moments as these, there were thousands of other calls—everyday calls made possible by our making sure service is reliable, always ready to carry your voice where you want, when you want.

Pacific Telephone

Your telephone is one of today's best bargains

In your budget today, you'll find few things which can match the telephone in value. Take food, for example. If the cost of butter had gone up no more, since 1940, than average telephone rates in Pacific Telephone's territory, you'd be able to buy butter today for about 48 cents a pound.
