Talent Marshal Resigns Position

Talent — John Butler, city marshal and water master here for three years, is resigning from his position about mid-July, according to Mayor Harold Straus.

Butler's resignation followed a second budget election last week in which the citizens turned down the proposed city budget by 82 votes to 61. According to City Recorder Mrs. Nona McAbbe, the city marshal is seeking a job which pays more money. The position paid $3,600 and the council was asking a raise to $3,800 a year in the special budget election.

Mayor Straus reported that after the budget was refused a second time by the voters, it was necessary to cut all department allotments and to eliminate one employee position. He said the position concerned was the assistant to the marshal and water master.

Savage Rapids Dam Funds Get Approval

Funds for rehabilitation of the Savage Rapids dam on Rogue river were included in the $560,582.364 Interior Department budget approved Monday by the senate appropriations committee according to word from Washington, D.C. The amount allowed for the Savage Rapids project was $700,000.

Victor Boehl, president of the Grants Pass Irrigation district and Wm. F. Johnson, attorney for the district, appeared in Washington several weeks ago to push the project, which the appropriation probably covers.

The district's application, based on Corps of Engineers estimates, called for $688,000 of loaned funds for rehabilitation of the dam and $156,000 for screening the turbine intakes at the dam.

The later appropriation would be non-reimbursable and would be charged to reclamation.

Boehl today expressed the belief that the Senate committee had shaved the amount of the total estimate but that he is writing Senator Guy Cordon by air-mail letter for a breakdown of the $700,000 figure, to determine what portion is allotted to screening.
