

State Gambling Law Said Disgraceful

Portland—(U.P.)—Oregon's pari-mutuel law permitting gambling on horse and dog races has been a disgrace since its inception, the Presbyterian synod of Oregon declared Tuesday at its annual meeting.

The delegates unanimously supported the report on gambling, which also called on law enforcement officers to live up to their oaths of office and enforce present gambling laws.

The synod suggested the full use of the state law permitting children to be released from school studies one hour a week for religious instruction to help stem juvenile delinquency.

Small Metal Box To Tell Chance of Life In Atomic Explosion

Sacramento—(U.P.)—A small metal box, known as a "colorimetric dosimeter," that can determine your chance for life or death in an atomic attack, is being developed by the University of California at Los Angeles.

The two-inch black box is a chemical radiation detector and contains three tubes of purple liquid. Each tube is set to absorb a certain amount of radiation without change.

Tubes Tell Story

After that point if one tube turns yellow—you'll survive if given blood plasma and treatment. If two tubes turn yellow—there's a slightly less than 50 per cent chance you'll survive. If all three tubes turn yellow—99 chances out of 100 you'll be dead within six weeks.

Development of the device is being supervised by Dr. Stafford Warren, dean of the UCLA medical school and California's official radiological expert.

State civil defense officials said every Californian may someday wear one around his neck like an army dog-tag.

Each box would be riveted shut to prevent trading or purchasing of dosimeters. Name, address and blood type should be stamped into each box.

The box would be opened only at a casualty station after an atomic bombing and medical corpsmen would be able to determine immediately to what degree the person had been exposed to radio-activity and the chances for saving the victim.

Dr. Warren said acceptable for public use the Federal Bureau of Standards must give them approval and the $2.50 per unit cost must be brought down to 25 or 50 cents.

Liquid Content

The purple liquid contained in the box is potassium hydroxide, chloroform and a special litmus-type dye. The tubes are made of a special pyrex to prevent radiation from minerals in the glass itself.

When enough injurious gamma rays penetrate the liquid, part of the potassium compound changes structure. It combines with the chloroform to produce hydrochloric acid which turns the dye from purple to yellow.
