As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

INVALID, 28, SHOULD AVOID MARRIAGE TO OLDER WOMAN

Age differences in marriage can be the source of much trouble, especially when the wife is the older of the two. When the difference is so great that the husband could be the son of the wife, there is likely to be trouble ahead. That is why the young man who wrote the following letter should watch out:

(Q) "I am 26-years-old. At the present time, I am confined to a sanatorium. During my stay here, I have fallen in love with a nurse who is 25 years older than I. I am very much in need of advice. Should I marry her or wait until I recover my health and look around a little more?"

I can think of no greater folly than for a man of your age to marry a woman in the fifties. etanishrduletatoin whole gen-

There is a whole generation between the two of you, not only in age but also in interests, and point of view. She is literally old enough to be your mother.

Then, too, so long as you are ill enough to be in a sanatorium, you are in no position to assume the responsibilities of marriage. Unless you have a private income large enough to support yourself and a wife, it would not be fair for you to ask any woman to marry you, regardless of her age.

The very fact that you say it might be wise to wait and "look around" suggests that you are not sure in your own mind about your feelings for this woman.

THE GRAY LOOK

In the pamphlet "The Iodin Ration," for which send stamped, self-addressed envelope, there is only this allusion to grayness:

"Just as many youngsters, more girls than boys, begin to mope in their teens for want of iodine, so do many mature adults have no

but I still say I don't take much stock in such reports, although I do believe most persons whose hair is beginning to turn gray will find that a suitable daily ration of iodine tends to stay this and other cold gradations.

When one is depressed, blue, tired or melancholy one sees in the mirror the gray hairs, wrinkles and other signs of oncoming age. When one feels cheerful and fit one notices with satisfaction how few gray hairs, wrinkles and sags are showing. Anyway a suitable iodine ration can do no harm.

pep or ambition, a tendency to doze any time, anywhere, although they sleep long hours every night, to put on more and more slackish flesh, have dry, falling, prematurely graying hair . . . melancholic outlook and manner which, to their friends, is so different from their former cheerful disposition . . .

Although I am an international quack I do not guarantee or even promise that a suitable iodine ration will restore the pristine color to gray or graying hair. The truth is, all I know about it is what they tell me. A good many readers in the course of the past 20 years have assured me, in the present tense, that since they got onto the iodine ration their gray or graying hair is getting its natural color again. There may be an occasional report in the files in the past tense, enough to return home and resume your work, there will be plenty of time to consider what you want to do with the rest of your life.

Do not hurt the feelings of this woman who has been so good to you during your invalidism. Keep up your friendship with her, even after you return home. She will realize in time, just as you will how unwise a marriage between you would be.
