Major Loop Club Owners To Draft New Bonus Rule

Philadelphia — (U.P.) — The honeymoon apparently is over for baseball's bonus babies who have been getting as much to sign a contract as many tried and true veterans get for playing the game half a dozen years.

The major league club owners voted Monday to establish a new bonus rule at the winter meetings in Phoenix, Ariz., next December, and a special committee, to be named by the two major league presidents and George Trautmann, the boss of the minors, will draft the legislation.

Cheney Studs Add Players

Addition of three players to the roster of the Medford Cheney Studs baseball aggregation has been reported.

The three are Marty Hume, pitcher, and Tom O'Donnell, utility player, teen-agers from Sacramento Junior college, and Mike Budnick, Coast league veteran from Seattle.

Hume and O'Donnell played with the Studs at Crescent City last Friday and Saturday. Hume was pitcher in the Studs 12 to 1 Saturday triumph, allowing four hits, walking none and fanning five.

O'Donnell Homers

O'Donnell, a husky lad, is an infielder, outfielder and catcher and is said to be a good hitter. He homered Friday and got two hits Saturday, playing left field and third base, respectively, during the two days.

The youths, who have been playing for Ft. Jones in the Northern California circuit, will have work here. They are expected to make their initial Medford appearance when the Studs play the House of David here on Tuesday, July 15.

Budnick may break in with Medford during the Drain series this Saturday and Sunday at Drain.

Prineville Bout Billed For July 26 to Match Kahut Against Wagner

Portland — (U.P.) — Promoter Tex Salkeld said he is going ahead with plans for a 10-round boxing headliner between Dick Wagner of Oregon City and Joe Kahut of Woodburn, Ore., to be staged in Prineville July 26.

Salkeld said Wagner's New York manager, Charley Black, has already approved the match although Wagner, a light-heavyweight, would spot Kahut some 10 pounds. The cards, scheduled for the Prineville rodeo arena, will be supported by two-six round matches.

Slugging Kid Gavilan Stops Turner in 11th

Philadelphia — (U.P.) — Welterweight Champion Kid Gavilan, speedster suddenly turned slugger to knock out young Gil Turner, warned other 147-pound contenders Tuesday to watch out for similar explosives when he returns from a vacation in his native Havana.

"I'd like to give that Bobby Dykes the same treatment in September," said the dusky "Keed" who scored a technical knockout over previously unbeaten Turner at 2:47 of the 11th round Monday night before 39,025 in municipal stadium.

Dykes lost on a disputed split decision to Gavilan at Miami

Beach, Fla., last Feb. 5 in Gavilan's second defense of the crown.

Punches With Might

The Cuban champ had been rated a comparatively light puncher because of only 24 previous knockouts in 98 professional fights.

He let the terrifically aggressive 21-year-old Philadelphia Negro force the fighting in every round, and he set himself to punch with all his might whenever he thought he saw an opening.

The big opening came in the 10th round, when he landed a crushing left hook on the jaw of the challenger who had been guarding chiefly against rights. Turner's knees buckled and he lurched about the ring under a bombardment, but in the last 30 seconds Turner came storming back.

Turner Staggered

The game youngster came out fighting in the 11th. Gavilan set himself for every punch. Again he staggered the challenger with a left hook to the chin, followed by a right smash to the same target. He battered the youngster into the ropes and there blasted him with 13 right and left hooks to the head. The upper rope was under Turner's right armpit and he appeared unable to fall.

Referee Pete Tomasco then halted the bout to prevent Turner's suffering serious injury. George Katz, manager of Turner, complained bitterly because the referee had intervened when only 13 seconds remained in the round.

Gavilan, scaling 146 pounds to Turner's 144½, was unable to score a knockout, but the ring ropes certainly robbed him of one in the 11th session.

Boats, Motors Now Available at Fourmile Lake

Fishermen may again motor to Fourmile lake. Jack Hoffbuhr, manager of the Medford Irrigation district, reported yesterday that the road is open after being closed for more than a week because of reconstruction necessitated by a slide.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Blood, who have the resort concession at Fish lake, have boats and motors available for fishermen at Fourmile lake. Reservations for the boats can be made by telephoning the fish lake resort.

Fish lake itself is closed to angling this year. However, the store is operating, cabins are available and the resort can serve as a base for fishermen going to Fourmile lake. Last year, to remove trash fish, all fish were cleared from Fish lake. It has been stocked with legal-sized trout and fingerlings.

Small Youngsters Taught Fundamentals of Traffic

Vancouver, B. C. — (U.P.) — Vancouver believes in teaching them when they're young.

This summer, hundreds of the city's small fry will be driving small pedal cars, all the while observing traffic rules, over miniature courses in city parks as they learn the fundamentals of traffic safety.

The traffic conditions will be the same as are met every day in downtown traffic. The youngsters, between five and nine years old, will have the friendly advice of a traffic constable to straighten out their mistakes.

The courses have two-lane roads, all the usual traffic signs and a remote control traffic light.
