Economist Says Standards High For Housekeeping

New York — (U.P.) — The fact that mamma holds an outside job doesn't mean that mamma's a haphazard cook.

A leading home economist says that our standards of housekeeping and cooking are the highest in history, despite the fact that a record number of women, close to 20,000,000, hold outside jobs.

The home economist is Ellen Dunham, director of consumer service for General Foods, who was one of the speakers at the recent annual conference of gas appliance manufacturers.

Miss Dunham said some of the credit for the high standards goes to the women themselves for their ever-increasing interest in food; part goes to better equipment and some goes to the packaged and frozen foods now available.

Work Already Done
"Food processors are doing most of the work our grandmothers had to do themselves," she said.

The home economist added that in the early 1930's there were just three frozen processors in the nation. Today there are more than 1,000.

"A survey shows," she continued, "that today's housewife each year uses more than 1,100 kinds of food packages, including the frozen foods and prepared mixes."

"More than half the cakes baked today are made from packaged mixes."

Beth Bailey McLean, home economist for Swift and Co., told the manufacturers that the soaring cost of living was causing a revolution in women's shopping habits.

"We used to urge the homemaker to plan her meals before she went shopping," Miss McLean said. "Now, we tell her to first check the specials at the meat and grocery counter and then plan the menus."

Kitchen Glamorized
Russell Wright, designer, told the conference that women now are giving as much attention to decorating the kitchen as the rest of the house.

"The housewife wants the kitchen to be more than just a food preparation center," he said. "She wants it to be a part of the day-to-day homelife, with more than scullery functions."

Dr. William Smith Jr., professor of family relationships at Pennsylvania State College, saw kitchens changing because more husbands are helping in them.

With more wives working," he explained, "more husbands and children — are sharing in kitchen duties. That is all to the good, because the teamwork is helping to build warm and enduring family relationships."

Chilled Summer Drinks

Summer days, long and lazy, are here. These are the days when everyone wants to be out in the open as much as possible. To have leisure time requires planning ahead of time. A little forethought in marketing will save many a last minute rush when an opportunity for a day's pleasure presents itself.

An assortment of tinned and jarred foods on your pantry shelves can afford a delightful quick meal or a picnic lunch at short notice, and save many long hours of preparation. Canned or frozen fruit juices, flavorings, fresh fruits, packaged ice cream and plenty of pale dry ginger ale and sparkling water on hand, mean that you can whip up refreshing drinks in a jiffy for any occasion.

Ginger ale, well chilled, is an excellent refresher at any time, and it mixes well with almost any fruit juice. A scoop of vanilla ice cream in a glass of ginger ale is a truly delicious drink. For an afternoon party, here is a good drink.

Five O'Clock Cooler

2 cups tea infusion 1½ cups grapefruit juice, sweetened
¼ cup mint jelly green food coloring
¼ cup sugar pale dry ginger ale
fresh mint

Pour hot tea over jelly and sugar; stir until dissolved. Add grapefruit juice and coloring; chill. Divide among 8 tall glasses. Add ice cold ginger ale. Stir gently to mix. Top each with a spray of mint.
