Preacher, Police Chief Now Friendly

Mattoon, Ill. — (U.P.) — A preacher and a police chief have been on the outs but the air seems to be cleared now.

The Rev. La Rue Jensen of Alton, Ill., received a letter from the Mattoon police asking him to pay fines for two traffic tickets issued to a car bearing his license number.

"I've never been in Mattoon in my life," the preacher wrote to the Mattoon police. "One hates to think a police department would engage in a racket of collecting fines from innocent citizens."

The Mattoon police chief replied that the officer must have made a mistake in copying the number and issued an invitation to the preacher to visit Mattoon and see for himself that there were no rackets here.

Tattoo Artist Now Etching Beauty Spots

Montreal — (U.P.) — Montreal women have started buying beauty spots from a tattoo artist. "Sailor Joe" Simmonds, who runs a studio for skin etchings, told a reporter there is a new trend in the trade.

He now etches beauty spots for girls.

"The beauty spot novelty is becoming a fad," he said. "One day recently 10 girls came in to get spots tattooed on their cheeks."

Simmonds operates a studio in the rear of a pool room. He said most of his customers are sailors but he has left his etchings on many men and women.

Akron, O. — (U.P.) — Inflation, the Summit County elections has found, has spread to polling booths.

To replace them, though, the elections board found that costs have risen from about $700 to $949 for the new ones.
