Cannery Layoffs Bring Highest Unemployment Since Late in May

Salem —(U.P.)— Cannery layoffs in recent weeks resulted in more unemployment in Oregon on Aug. 1 than at any time since late in May, according to reports from local offices of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission.

The number of Oregon workers actively seeking jobs climbed from 17,078 two months ago to 18,236 last week — the biggest early summer increase since the end of the war. A year ago 13,233 job seekers were reported.

Benefits Advance Sharply

Benefits paid cannery workers advanced sharply in recent weeks. Only 383 employees of food processing plants received checks early in July but 1,342 were listed last week—nearly a fourth of all claimants. Meanwhile, the number of women seeking jobs was estimated at 7,804, more than have been seen by local offices since mid-April. With bean picking now well under way and late fruits beginning to come in, cannery employment is expected to pick up considerably during the next few weeks, peaking early in September.

Payments Increase

Payments to insured workers in July reached $469,156, an increase of 31 per cent from the corresponding month of 1951 but slightly below the postwar average for this season. Since the beginning of the 1952-53 benefit year, 15,200 persons have filed claims as compared with 13,149 at this time a year ago, the commission said. Fewer lumber and logging workers were among current claimants, but every other main classification was higher than in August, 1951.

West Oregon Responsible

Western Oregon areas were mainly responsible for the rise in the number of idle workers. Only the Ontario and The Dalles districts east of the Cascades reported more job seekers than a month or a year before, but Salem, Portland, Hillsboro, Astoria, Roseburg and Toledo were among western offices noting a letdown.

Nude Beach Bathing Seen in Next 20 Years

Mays Landing, N. J. —(U.P.)— A leader of the American nudist movement came up with a cooling thought for the day.

Birthday suit bathing at public beaches may be only 20 years in the future, according to the Rev. Ilsey Boone, 73-year-old Baptist minister who has headed the American Sunbathing Association since the early 1930s.

"Uncle Danny" Boone took over as top nudist when men still felt it was daring to doff the tops of their swim suits. He says he may live to see the day when the bottom comes off, too.

Women To Be First

Women will have flung modesty aside long before, Boone thinks. If you don't agree, just look around you, he advises.

"If we are to judge from the past two decades," he said, "in another 20 years there will be a great deal of unsegregated nude bathing on public beaches. The day is here already when thousands of people while not nudists themselves, feel it is all right for those who follow the nudist principles to practice nudism."

Censure Removal Goal

Boone described the goal of the nudist movement as the removal of censure, both moral and legal, from those who wish to disrobe for reasons of comfort or health. Great strides already have been made at bathing resorts along the Danube in Austria, on the North and Black Seas and on French islands in the Mediterranean.

There are a few beaches along the Atlantic seaboard where "the young people of the community" enjoy mixed swimming in the altogether, he reported. And Boone can recount a bit of history that proves such goings-on were socially acceptable at Newport, R. I., 100 years ago.

"It was the custom there to keep the entire beach available for nude bathing of the servants of wealthy families, except for the few hours a day when the masters went to the beach—clothed—to dunk in the surf," he said. "A red ball hoisted atop a flagpole signalled the availability of the beach for unclothed swimming after the 'classes' left the strand to the 'masses'."

Boone hopes the "classes" will be answering the red ball signal at Newport by 1972.

Horses Becoming Scarce As Britishers Eat Them

Manchester, England —(U.P.)— Britain faces a shortage of horses because its meat-hungry residents are eating them at the rate of 50,000 a year, the Manchester Guardian has disclosed. The Guardian based its statement on a survey which said the shortage also was partly caused by blackmarketing of horses to the Continent.

Man Too Busy To Send Bill for Money Due Him

Milwaukee —(U.P.)— The municipal Board of Purchases has been trying to persuade Leo Schneider to present a bill for supplies his firm sold to the city. Schneider said he was "too busy" right now but would try to send a statement soon. The bill amounts to $620,652.
