University Branch Forbids English

Montreal — (U.P.) — A branch of McGill University, one of the largest higher-learning institutions in the English-speaking world, has banned the use of the English language.

McGill's French summer school, in past years, a highly successful project aimed at teaching students to speak French, makes talking a "crime" if it's done in English.

One of the most rigidly enforced rules states that "any student who persists in breaking the no-English rule will be brought before the dean of the faculty of arts and science, who may dismiss him from the school."

The regulation even applies to husbands talking to their wives during the six-week course which McGill started to expedite the learning of conversational French.

Students may not go to English movies or read English-language newspapers. They may not entertain friends in the college residence unless they speak French.

Telephone calls have to be handled in French and if the students hear radio programs, they have to come from French-language stations.

Prof. P. C. Nardin, director of the school, said the rule paid dividends.

"As the students' command of spoken French improves rapidly, they experience a sense of achievement," he said. "The greater their enthusiastic adherence to the rule, the better and quicker their progress."

High Taxes Clouding Opportunity Dreams

Chicago — (U.P.) — High taxes have clouded the dream of opportunity for success, the president of the Young Presidents' organization says.

Richard B. Sellers, 36, told a YPO board of directors' meeting that there is less chance for job advancement today than ever before.

"High taxes are chiefly to blame," he said. Sellers is president of Ethicon Sutures Laboratories, New Brunswick, N.J.

"Many of the men here, I'm sure," he told the group, "would admit that they probably could not succeed if they had to start all over again under today's economic conditions."

The YPO is composed of 317 young men who became presidents of their companies before the age of 39. To be eligible a president must head an industrial firm employing 100 or more persons and having an annual sales of more than $1,000,000. Service corporations must have more than 50 employees and an annual turnover of more than $2,000,000.

The average age of the presidents is 34½ years.

Your Health and Its Care

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Write the Public Health Service, Washington, D.C., for a copy of the original report of the survey or at least a reference to it.

Complications and sequelae of respiratory infections include operations on sinuses, mastoids, tonsils, middle ears (portion of hearing apparatus within drum membrane), lungs (for lung access), pleural cavity (for emphysema) and even the appendix, for in some instances acute appendicitis is due to the same Pneumococcus that so frequently causes tonsillitis.

So it should be manifest that it is not just a whim or vagary that one should call any respiratory infection a "cold" or one's physician can be reasonably sure whether it is two-day

VOLUNTARY ISOLATION

Surveys conducted by the U.S. Public Health Service in various urban and rural communities showed that 34 of the illness attended by physicians in the U.S. is due to C.R.I. (kree), short for common respiratory infections, or complications and sequelae of such infections.

If you call it "just a cold" you give every intelligent person around you a fair warning that you are a double-blank stinker and a menace to the health and life of every one within cough, sneeze or conversation spray range.

As long as medical and health authorities, so-called, cling to the quaint delusion that many

The air conditioner in a local department store went completely berserk yesterday, covering everything with six inches of snow.

We are happy to report that management arose to the occasion, doing a brisk business in long handled underwear and a complete closeout of bathing suits at one half price.

diseases are due to "exposure" to cold and dampness, the freely distributed respiratory infections will continue to keep physicians and surgeons busy most of the time.

Perhaps it is utopian to imagine what the effect upon the health and happiness of the world would be if every one called such illness or indisposition a cry and followed the golden rule of hygiene—voluntary isolation.

Voluntary isolation means keeping not less than 12 feet away from other persons or, if this is not practicable, wearing a suitable mask whenever closer approach is necessary. In the booklet Call it C.R.I., for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope, instructions for making and using such masks are given.

Cough or sneeze spray range is up to 12 feet from the mouth or nose of the person who coughs or sneezes without covering mouth and nose. Conversation spray range is less than five feet; that is, the invisibility of faintly visible and palpable moisture droplets in the spray that shoots from the mouth in ordinary conversation carry only a few feet, and so, if you can manage to keep at least five feet away from the double-blank stinker who pretends to have "just a little cold," you are not likely to catch it; unless, indeed, his laughter or conversation is boisterous.
