Medford Teacher Technical Director Umpqua Cavalcade

Roseburg—A Medford teacher, who spends nine months of the year telling students about dramatics, takes time out summers to prove he knows what he's talking about.

He is Bob Stedman, who refuses to be called Robert, and who teaches dramatics for the Medford schools.

Mr. Stedman is technical director for the Umpqua Cavalcade, a huge stage production depicting the history of Douglas county. The Medford instructor has also been technical director for other pageants, notably the Oregon Trail Pageant in Eugene, which is presented each three years.

The Umpqua Cavalcade will be presented at the Douglas County fairgrounds in Roseburg three nights, Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1.

Stedman, who was active in the Ashland Shakespearean Festival when it started in the middle 30's, is presently working on the immense 225-foot long stage for the Roseburg pageant.

The stage, similar in design to that used in the Shakespearean plays, but considerably larger, contains 45,000 board feet of lumber and 8,000 square feet of plywood—enough to build several houses.

The pageant, directed by Horace Robinson, head of the University of Oregon theater, will dramatically portray history of Douglas county dating to the time of the Indians.

Thrilling Indian attacks, bloody massacres, a stage coach robbery, the California gold rush, the arrival of Sir Francis Drake and many other events adapted from authentic history of the county, will be staged by a cast of some 1,500 performers.

Reserve tickets for the pageant are available at Centennial Headquarters, Box 1280, Roseburg.
