Winchester Bay Angling Said Better

Portland—(U.P.)—The Oregon State Game Commission's weekly fishing report includes: At Winchester bay, more large chinook are being taken inside the bar than previously. Salmon fishing generally is improving. Trout fishing has been spotty and generally not good. Trout angling in the south coastal streams is poor. Salmon fishing in the lower Rogue is poor. On the upper Rogue and its tributaries, trout angling is good on single eggs and on black and grey flies. Most tributaries are still dropping and very clear. Catches are fair to good at the headwaters of the Applegate and Illinois rivers. A few steelhead are being hooked between Dodge bridge and below Gold Hill. Trout fishing is fair in streams of the upper Umpqua area and the mountain lakes are producing fair to good catches. A few sea-run cutthroat are being caught in the lower north Umpqua and upper main Umpqua but success is usually poor. Summer steelhead angling is slow throughout the area.

G. Tanselli Leads Salem To 9-1 Win

Salem—(U.P.)—Gene Tanselli's big bat knocked in five runs last night to pace the Senators to a 9-1 victory over Yakima.

The win broke a four-game losing streak for the Salem club but it wasn't enough to keep Yakima from taking the series here, two games to one.

Tanselli knocked out a homer in the second inning with two men on base. He also got three singles.

Joe Nicholas, who manned the mound for Salem all the way, was credited with his 18th win against four losses.

Nicholas cheated himself of a shutout by missing a throw to second base in the seventh. Herm Lewis, whom Nicholas attempted to catch off base, ended up in scoring position and across the plate moments later.

Salem opens at Wenatchee tonight.

In other WIL games last night, Calgary downed Spokane, 11-4; Lewiston defeated Edmonton, 4-2; Victoria edged Vancouver, 4-3; and Tri-City nosed out Wenatchee, 7-6.
