

Student Group Attends Play Saturday Night

Ashland—The Oregon Shakespearean festival, Southern Oregon college, and Fireside circle, a group of young people from the Ashland Methodist church, played host to a group of students from Japan Saturday.

The 10 students are all in this country for graduate study in various universities, and are now living in Eugene as guests in various homes as a part of an international relations program.

They were accompanied to Ashland for a performance of "The Merchant of Venice" Saturday by their sponsors and 20 University of Oregon students. They were guests of the festival association for the play, were treated to a picnic in Lithia park by the church group, and stayed overnight at Southern Oregon college.

This is the second group of foreign students to come from Eugene as guests of the festival and the college. Last year a group of European students saw "Julius Caesar" in Ashland.
