As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, Ph.D.

Children Should Insist Firmly, Gently On Rights

One way of getting what you want in the world is by fighting for it. The way you fight, however, determines whether you get it and keep the respect of others or whether you come out the winner only in what you set out to get. How to train children in this is the question asked by a grandmother:

(Q) "Both my son and daughter want their kids to fight and take their part which, I believe, teaches them to lie, steal, and even become murderers. Two of my grandsons rule their parents' home and the older one rules the neighborhood also. While playing, this older child decides he wants whatever the other child is playing with. So he hits him and takes it from him. Both remember their mom and dad say, 'Fight for your right.' I say this is a bad way to raise kids. Do you agree with me?"

(A) I certainly do agree with you heartily. No child can make a place for himself in any group in civilized society if his method of getting what he wants is fighting with his fists. He may succeed while he is still young enough to play with toys but when he begins to put away childish things, he will have to mend his ways or find himself an outcast from society.

Of course people should learn to stand up for their rights, but there are ways of doing this without antagonizing others. Nothing, I can assure you, will antagonize more quickly than the hitting-over-the-head method your grandsons are learning to use.

Asking for things politely but firmly brings as good results as fist fighting and it does not antagonize. Why not tell your grandsons about this approach and encourage them to use it? Once they discover that it works they will be willing to use it. You will have to encourage the parents to alter their methods of rearing their children. Try to convince them that getting along with other people is just as important for children as standing up for their rights. This can never be done by the tactics they are encouraging. Elizabeth Hurlock is a consulting psychologist. Write her in care of this newspaper for free advice.

Four New Roads Join County Road System

Four roads in Grant Acres subdivision have been accepted into the county road system, according to the county commissioners' journal. They include Bluejay lane, Robin rd., Oak Pine way, and New Ray rd.

The roads were graded, drained and surfaced by owners of abutting property to county specifications and at their own cost. They will be maintained by county crews.

Shady Cove Postal Clerk Exams Slated

Examinations for the position of substitute clerk at the Shady Cove post office have been announced by the Civil Service Commission. The position pays $1.38½ per hour, and applicants must live in the postal delivery area of Shady Cove. Registers from the examinations will be used to fill permanent and temporary appointments.

Further information and application forms are available at the Shady Cove post office, or from the 11th civil service region, 320 Federal Office Building, Seattle 4, Wash. Application should be filed with the director of the region before Sept. 14.

HOLE-IN-ONE CLUB

Milan, Ind. — (U.P.) — Bob Shepherd, North Vernon, Ind., scored a hole-in-one the hard way at Milan's golf course. He drove the ball directly into the cup—no roll, no bounce.

Your Health and Its Care

ONE GOOD TURN

For the major part of my life (says the girl from Maine) I had to live on other people's grub and like it. Result: by 71 nervous indigestion had me so nearly incapacitated that I retired and moaned and groaned. . . . Fortunately I had saved enough for a down payment on this house, where I let rooms and keep house for myself. It has paid, too, for now several people, including one M. D., think my fear of indigestion is just a nervous notion. Still, they insist that, at 83, I should break up and go to a home for the aged and try to live on the charming but nutritionally inadequate fare they have there. Have you any suggestions? (Signed)

Yes, two. First, I suggest that you tell 'em to go jump in the lake, and keep right on living. Second, lay in a peck of plain wheat and use it instead of white flour products and namy-pamy cheat-food in your everyday diet, as described in the pamphlet, "Wheat to Eat," available for the asking if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Of course one needs teeth to eat plain wheat, but somehow I feel confident that a girl with so much pluck must have a fair to middling mastication equipment. The girl from Minnesota didn't write to me, that is, not lately, but I gleaned these data from newspaper articles in the St. Paul Dispatch, which has tolerated a certain health columnist since antebellum days (the big war, that is).

The article, illustrated with a picture of the girl at the cutting of her birthday cake, says she advises people who want to stay healthy and in high spirits to roll a few somersaults each day, as she does at 88.

I call this personable lady a girl because at first look at her picture I whistled twice — one short, one long.

She makes a lot of you people half her age look decrepit. She hasn't missed a day of somersaulting and she hasn't been ill a day since she began somersaulting in 1918, under the instruction, inspiration, instigation—what would you old geezers call it?—of a health columnist who uses my name to propagate just such crazy notions. In the pamphlet on Somersaulting, available on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope, I state clearly, I hope (can't read it myself) that somersaults are not enough exercise to keep one in good health. The Minnesota girl understands this—she takes six miles of oxygen on the hoof every day—walking 1½ miles to breakfast, back home, and then 1½ miles to late afternoon dinner and home again, every day, winter and summer.

What a girl!

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Alive and Happy

The manifestations of iodine deficiency described in your pamphlet would have been sufficient to identify front and profile views. After eating approximately 5 a day for a month, I never felt so alive and happy. (Miss L. A. A.)

MOO-O-O-S and MUSINGS

Just as we always feared it would be, Hadacol is about to be rationed.

We suppose we'll just have to face a bleak future of weak eyebrows and a wild, uncontrollable growth of hair on our tongue.

Little Daisy

Answer—Thank you. Girls in their early teens and women 35 to 45 commonly present such manifestations as moodiness, lassitude, apathy. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (do not use clipping) for pamphlet, "THE IODINE FACTOR," Government Hasn't Caught Up With Me.

What's wrong up at your Plant? I write and no reply. I mentioned to a friend and he said he understood the Government had closed you up. (Mr. K. C.)

Answer—I still manage to keep one jump ahead of the government. You may get a reply if you enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and save postcard expense.

My skin burns, stings and itches so much after a bath . . . (Mrs. D. S. H.)

Answer—Then why soak in hot water? Or why use soap except to aid in removing actual grime? Why scrub or rub? Why not just an air bath? If you are shocked out of your harshly treated skin, send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet, "SAVE YOUR SKIN." It contains several recipes for good home made lotions, balms and ointments for pruritus itching.

New Bridge Named For Alex Sparrow

The new Kirtland rd. bridge across Bear creek will be known as the Alex Sparrow bridge. The county court has instructed County Engineer Paul Rynning to place a suitable tablet on the span when it is completed.

The bridge will be named in honor of the late Judge Alex Sparrow, one-time Jackson county judge and superintendent of Crater Lake National park and an outstanding county civic leader for many years.

The ukulele became popular in Hawaii about 1877.
