

GG Supply Sufficient for Mass Immunization in Epidemic Areas

New York — (U.P.) — Despite shortages, there is enough gamma globulin for mass immunization of children in polio epidemic areas and the time to use it is now, the United Press learned today on high authority.

Of approximately 4,500,000 cubic centimeters of gamma globulin allotted by the Office of Defense Mobilization for mass immunizations, a p p r o x i m a t e l y 1,100,000 cubic centimeters have been used so far.

The remainder, enough to give immunity to 425,000 children under 10 for up to five weeks, is held by the ODM for allocation to areas where the total number of polio cases passes a critical level. That level at present is 200 cases for 100,000 population.

Season at Peak

It should be used soon because this week, next week, or the week after may bring the peak of the 1953 polio season. Many counties now are at or near the critical level and more probably will exceed it in the next few weeks.

On the basis of the statistical records of previous years, the polio season reaches its peak usually in the last week of August, or the first two weeks of September. Thereafter, the case loads taper off although there may be as many or more cases after the peak as before it.

Medford Ex-POW Suffered Wounds In Arms and Leg

The extent of wounds and injuries suffered by Marine Pfc. Leonard Steege, released Medford prisoner of war, was reported here today in a letter from the Marine Corps commandant, Washington, D.C.

The letter was sent to the young Marine's mother, Mrs. A. H. Webster, 401 East 12th st. Mrs. Webster is now in California to meet her son when he arrives there.

The letter stated that Private Steege is suffering from a fractured left arm and wounds to his right elbow and left knee. Any nerve or arterial involvement is still unknown, the letter said.

It added that Private Steege is receiving the best possible medical treatment, and that any additional information, including expected time of arrival in the United States, will be forwarded immediately to Mrs. Webster and her husband.

These figures were shown to Dr. Kenneth Landauer, assistant medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. He said they were correct. And he pointed out why gamma globulin should be used for mass immunizations in epidemic areas and should not be used on "casual contacts" in non-epidemic areas.

The basic reason is that there is not enough gamma globulin to inject into the some 46 million children in the United States, the most susceptible portion of the total population. Therefore, the limited supply has to be used where it will do the most good in preventing polio.

Considerable Risk

In epidemic areas, there is a great deal of virus in circulation. All the children in those areas run a considerable risk of having the virus invade their bodies. But when they are injected with gamma globulin, they have a high degree of immunity when they are invaded.

Weather Changes Plan For Trail Riders

Weather uncertainty has forced the Medford Trail Riders to cancel their overnight ride to Hamacher meadows this week end, members said.

A breakfast ride is planned instead. The public is invited.

The ride will start at 9 a.m. from the Phoenix-Jacksonville highway one-eighth mile west of Stagecoach orchards.

In The Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

Another monkey wrench is thrown into the truce machinery.

Ben Limb, South Korean ambassador to the United States, announces flatly in Washington that South Korea will not sit in any peace talks with India (which he calls an appeaser of communists) unless India SITS ON THE COMMUNIST SIDE OF THE TABLE, where, he intimates, she belongs.

Commenting on Limb's statement, P. T. Pyun, South Korea's foreign minister says: "That is rough talk, but South Korea is near death and people who are near death are usually very frank."

I ADMIRE your spunk, sir, but I'd like to call your attention to the fact that people who kick over the traces and talk rough to their friends in the pines seldom get what they want. What you want is liberty for your country, and if I were you I'd be a little more diplomatic about it.

MEANWHILE—

Moving with almost wartime secrecy, a group of our B-36 intercontinental bombers (built to carry atom bombs anywhere in the world) lands in Japan after a non-stop flight from bases in the United States.

ARE you old enough to remember the days when in touchy situations such as the present one in Korea the British fleet would put in its appearance at some spot in the world where trouble was possibly brewing?

This was usually enough to fix things up without any shooting. Those were wonderful days. They were days when there was responsible leadership in the world. When there was a balance of POWER in the world.

IT WAS Britain's responsibility then. It's OUR responsibility now. That is a sobering thought. The consciousness of responsibility is always a sobering thought.

BUT enough of grave situations.

Ex-Queen Narriman of Egypt is suing Ex-King Farouk for the tidy sum of 4,000 pounds ($11,330) a month in alimony. She hasn't been divorced. She has just been deserted. She wants money enough to live on in the style to which she has become accustomed.

Who says nobody loves a fat man? If she requires $11,000 a month to compensate her for the loss of Farouk, she must love him a lot.

SECOND thought:

Maybe it's his money she loves.

KARL RITTER, a glittering figure of the gay nineties and the even gayer 1900's, dies in Bad Homburg, in Germany, near Frankfurt.

Ritter's fabulous hotel in Bad Homburg was a favorite rendezvous around the turn of the century for the royalty of Europe and for bluebloods generally. Edward VII of England, whose reign was known as the Edwardian era, loved Ritter's hotel when he was Prince of Wales, and it was at Bad Homburg that he designed and introduced the Homburg hat. Bad Homburg ("Bad" is German for "bath") has its history, you see.

THAT was back in the days when the appearance of the British fleet at some troubled spot in the world was enough to quiet the disturbance and restore tranquility.

It was also back in the days when the royalty and the nobility of Europe ate good food and drank good wine until their eyes bugged out and they could no longer get into their clothes. When that time came, and boiled themselves out in the hot springs until they could again get their belts buckled around their middles.

Then they went back to their accustomed way of life and did it all over again.

THE world has changed. I wouldn't know whether or not it has changed for the better.

Clinton, Okla.—(U.P.)—Donald Gowdy, driving along a highway near here, decided to clock the speed of an airplane flying overhead. Gowdy discovered, to his sorrow, the plane was a highway patrol aircraft with two way radio to a patrol car ahead.

Some Brown Rot Shows in Peaches

Rogue valley orchard men were warned today that some brown rot is showing up in local peaches.

The situation is not believed to be serious, county agents state, adding that preventive measures should be taken at this time to prevent spread of rot.

Brown rot, which thrives on damp weather, effects peach, plum and prune crops. Orchardists should start spray or dusting programs with sulfur immediately to guard against the fungus.

County agents recommend applications of dust or spray at five-day intervals during the present damp weather and state that they should be continued through picking until all fruit is harvested. The fruit should have a protective covering of sulfur when picked.

Dusting sulfur should be used at the rate of 60 pounds to the acre. Spray should be six pounds of wettable sulfur to 100 gallons of water.

Union President Indicted for Perjury

Washington—(U.P.)—Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. announced today that a federal grand jury here has indicted Ben Gold, president of the Fur and Leather Workers Union, on charges of swearing falsely that he was not a Communist.

A federal court warrant has been issued for Gold's arrest, and he will be held in $10,000 bond when picked up.

The three-count indictment charges that Gold on or about Aug. 30, 1950, filed a non-Communist affidavit with the National Labor Relations Board here in which he "falsely stated that he was not then and there a member of the Communist party."

HEADS BAR ASSOCIATION

Boston — (U.P.) — William J. Jameson of Billings, Mont., was sworn in today as the 77th president of the American Bar Association.

Townsend in London; Princess in Scotland

London — (U.P.) — Handsome Group Capt. Peter Townsend came home today for the first time since his name was linked with that of Princess Margaret. Townsend, now air attaché at the British Embassy in Brussels, flew over to attend a meeting of British air attaches which opens here Monday.

But don't start saving old shoes and buying rice. Margaret is in Scotland, and anyway the latest word from court circles is that the romance is about over. Townsend refused to answer questions for reporters.

Climbers Descend

Kahachi, India — (U.P.)—Two bearded members of the ill fated American Godwin Austen expedition came back to civilization today, and said icy Mt. Godwin Austen they had sought to climb was still unconquered.

Expedition co-leader Robert Bates, Exeter, N. H., and Peter Schoening, Seattle, reached the town of Skardu in the bleak Himalayan foothills two and one-half months after setting out with six companions on a vain assault on the snow capped peak that cost the life of one man.

Federal Telephone Operator Jobs Open

Federal civil service has announced examinations for the position of telephone operator in various government agencies in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana. Salary is from $2,750 to $2,950 a year.

Further information and application forms may be obtained at the Medford post office. Applications should be filed with the Director, 11th U.S. Civil Service Region, 302 Federal Office Building, Seattle 4, Wash., immediately.

As We Live

NEWCOMERS FIND IT HARD TO MAKE FRIENDS

Children as a rule make friends easily, but with passing years it becomes harder, as this woman is discovering. She writes:

(Q) "My problem, I imagine, is a fairly common one. We moved here about a year ago and for the first time in our lives are finding it very difficult to make friends. My husband and I are in our early 30's and have been married for ten years. We have two daughters, both of school age. We have been attending a church here, but people who are well established here, while awfully nice to us, seem to be so taken up with their own friends and activities that we can't seem to break the ice. I thought you might know of others who are new here and are finding it hard to establish themselves."

(A) In every community there are newcomers who, like you, find it hard to break the ice and establish themselves as a part of their new community.

The trouble is not with the community or with the people themselves. Their ages are at the root of the problem. I am sure that your daughters did not find it hard to establish themselves in school. But when people are married and have homes and families, as most people in their early 30's do, their lives are filled with duties, responsibilities and a few old friends.

That is why you are finding it hard to break the ice. If you were younger or even middle-aged, things would be easier. However, if you are patient and make a real effort, you can make friends.

Here are some of the ways to do this:

1. Join some of the church, community and school organizations. Take part in their activities and get to know the people there.
2. Have your daughters invite classmates to your home and get to know their parents.
3. Ask your husband to invite some of the men he works with and their families to come to your home to meet you.

TV NEWS

Much has been said about live versus filmed TV shows, but one thing that's usually forgotten is that there are several different ways of filming shows... and the technique makes a lot of difference.

The usual method employs only one camera. "Drag-net," "Life of Riley," "My Little Margie," and many other filmed shows use this method. Individual scenes are shot and pieced together, like a movie. The second method is a multiple camera with audience system. The Groucho Marx show, "I Love Lucy," "Our Miss Brooks," and others use this technique. It has the advantage of live audience reaction. A third method is used for some of the new Jack Benny shows, the Joan Davis show, "Burns and Allen," and others. It uses three cameras with no audience, allowing more freedom in shooting. Often laughter is dubbed in on these shows, or the film is shown to an audience and its reaction is recorded.

So when you start arguing about live and filmed TV shows, you really have to state what kind of filmed show you mean! One thing is sure... If the show is good, the audience will like it no matter how it's made. The quality of the show is what counts in the end. But if your set isn't giving you a quality picture, you're not getting what you paid for. So make needed repairs promptly, and be sure you call the qualified technicians who service the sets we sell at YOUNGER'S APPLIANCE STORE, 31 N. Bartlett. Phone 2-6419.
