Forty-Niners Nudge Skins

San Francisco — (U.P.) — Coach Buck Shaw and his San Francisco Forty Niners safely over the hurdle of an exhibition game with the Washington Redskins, got a little nervous today over Thursday's game with the Los Angeles Rams.

"Everytime I think of the Rams, I get a headache," he said. He had a second in Curly Lambeau, coach of the Redskins who lost to the Forty Niners by a score of 7 to 0 in yesterday's game.

"The Forty Niners should lose to the Rams unless the Rams are way off," he said. "If the Forty Niners get Tittle back, they may have a slight chance."

Team Let Down

Lambeau said the Redskins read about Y. A. Tittle, the Forty Niners' star quarterback being out "and figured we'd win easily. Did we let down!"

Jim Powers led the attack for the San Francisco squad yesterday. He set up the touchdown on a 27-yard pass to Halfback Hugh McElhenney on the Redskins' 40. Joe Arenas, Forty Niner halfback, went across. Gordon Soltan converted.

IF YOU WANT IT DONE—Three Tiger pitchers failed to halt onslaught of Washington in Detroit, who scored 12 runs in seven innings, so Tiger Manager Fred Hutchinson (above) sent himself in as relief pitcher. His first pitching assignment since July 1, 1952, he proved his arm still in shape by allowing one man to reach base in eighth and ninth innings.

1952 Champions Near NBC Toga

Wichita, Kan. — (U.P.) — Unbeaten Fort Leonard Wood Mo., 1952 national semi-pro runner up, can win the crown tonight with a victory over the hometown Wichita Boeing Bombers.

Wichita advanced into the finals of the 19th annual National Baseball Congress tournament last night with a 5 to 3 victory over defending champion Military District of Columbia.

Because it is a double elimination tournament, a victory for Fort Leonard Wood tonight will mean the championship. But, should Wichita win, a playoff will be necessary. The Bombers have been defeated once in the tournament.

North Africans in France Are Serious Social Problems

Paris — (U.P.) — The death of seven Algerians from police gunfire during Bastille Day rioting focussed new attention on the serious social problem of 300,000 North Africans living in sub-marginal conditions in France.

Most of them are French citizens since Algeria was made part of the French homeland after World War Two. They come to the capital looking for work, and a better life.

Instead, most of them find themselves stranded, broke, unemployed, living in the most squalid conditions in France's largest cities. Because of their French citizenship there are no special services set up to protect and guide them in what remains for them a basically foreign land, and no means of controlling their entry or movement.

No Exact Figure

There is no exact figure on the number of Algerians in France, but most authorities agree that the 300,000 figure furnished by the Family Aid Office is a reliable estimate. Almost all are adult males.

The Ministry of Labor lists only 137,600 Algerians as gainfully employed. The rest are largely reduced to begging, peddling merchandise of dubious quality on the streets, or living by illegal means.

Employers say those who have jobs are good workmen, get along well with their fellows, are punctual and well disciplined, but markedly slower than native-born Frenchmen. Only one in a 1,000 rises to the level of foreman.

Live In Strange World

The Arabs are clannish, live together in groups according to their tribe or home town in Africa, and devotedly faithful to helping each other in the strange and frequently hostile world that surrounds them. With less than one in two working, and nearly all low paid, sharing with less fortunate tribesmen means packing several persons in a single room lacking even elementary necessities in the worst quarters of the city.

Crime runs in normal proportion to the population, police say. Knifing and violence are unusually high, but swindling is almost non-existent.

With living conditions so low and a social welfare program completely lacking, the Algerian colony has been a ripe field for Communist missionary work. The Reds have moved in where they found conditions worse and organized Algerians into "shock troops" that have little to lose in supporting the Communist propaganda line.

The Communists, of course, have everything to gain in stirring up a natural discontent and in setting up situations in which the Algerians can become public martyrs. Police charge that the Bastille Day rioting at Place de la Nation had all the earmarks of being well-organized in advance.

Why the West is Wild about Ford

Ford's got the "Go," the stamina and the low operating cost the West Coast demands!

Reason number one is the West's wide variety of driving conditions. Ford has the power to take the toughest mountain passes . . . to whisk you past slow moving trucks . . . to whiz along desert straight-a-ways.

Ford's big power story comes in the high-compression V-8 engine (the only V-8 in the low-price field). And the Ford Mileage Maker Six gives you more than enough power to meet any Western driving need.

Distance is its Dish. Here—where cars are used more, driven further—Ford gas economy really pays off. By beating the whole field in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run from L.A. to Sun Valley, a Ford Mileage Maker Six with Over-drive proved itself the right car for top savings.

Up to 80% Less Road Shock. Since Westerners "live" more in their cars, Ford's new Wonder Ride is just the ticket. It proves that you need not carry gas-eating extra weight in order to ride like a heavyweight. For Ford's new ride cuts front end road shock up to 80%.

Built to live outdoors. Ford's baked-on enamel finish is made and tested to stand up longer and to resist fading in the hot sun and salt air. And in winter, Ford's hull-tight body keeps you snug even in driving rain. Fords have smooth, welded seams to resist weather and dirt.

WORTH MORE WHEN YOU BUY IT . . . WORTH MORE WHEN YOU SELL IT
