Suggestions for Autoists Planning Trip To Alaska

Ottawa — (U.P.) — If you're planning to drive to Alaska over the war-built Alaskan highway the government of Canada has some words of advice for you.

The first 1,221 miles of the famous 1,527-mile route to Fairbanks lie within Canada. The section is administered and maintained by a special section of the Canadian army. But Canadian civil agencies also have a lot to say about how it is used.

And there are certain facts the department of northern affairs and national resources thinks tourists should know before they start out on the trip. A booklet published by the department wraps up the main points:

1. Carry enough money to cover the cost of the trip all the way. Canadian authorities will require that you convince them you won't be stranded without money some place along the line. It's rugged country. The authorities can require a bond under certain conditions.

2. Include enough cash for emergency repairs on the car. In this connection the government seems pretty certain there will be some. Under general suggestions they urge motorists to cover the underside of their gasoline tanks with pieces of old tires to protect them from flying gravel. And bring along "a basic set of car tools."

3. A shovel, a pick, tire chains, a tow rope and, in the summer months—June through September—two extra tires are musts. The booklet suggests that the tires be six-ply. In fall, winter and spring, a box or pair of sand is advisable to cope with ice. In the summer "a good insect repellent" is necessary.

4. If you take guns and fishing equipment, be prepared to have them sealed up by Canadian authorities except in the areas where you have obtained hunting or fishing licenses. All hunting is forbidden in game sanctuaries, and camp-fire permits are needed in British Columbia.

And don't be surprised at fluctuating gasoline prices. You'll pay 68 cents a gallon at Coal River, B. C., and again at Koidern Camp in the Yukon Territory. At points in between the prices go as low as 47 cents.

Worth While The American tourists who seem to get better mileage or fears his gas tank has shrunk is reminded that Canada uses the imperial gallon—one fifth larger than the American gallon.

But in spite of the warnings, tourist authorities hasten to assure motorists the trip is worth the trouble. The route passes through some of the wildest and most awe-inspiring country on the continent. Fishing is generally excellent and hunting is
