Defense Lawyer Tackles Coroner In Sheppard Case

Cleveland—A celebrated criminal once was dubbed "Willie the Actor," but today Cleveland's celebrated criminal lawyer William J. Corrigan, took the title away from him.

Corrigan is chief defense attorney for Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, the osteopath who is accused of beating his pregnant wife to death after a quarrel over his attentions to "other women."

The 67-year-old, white-haired attorney put on his act in starting to cross-examine a learned state witness. The man in the witness chair was Dr. Lester Adelson, deputy coroner and pathologist.

Courtroom Shocked

Adelson yesterday shocked the courtroom by projecting on a screen gruesome color slides of the hacked head of pretty Marilyn Sheppard. He had performed the customary autopsy on the body. His state's testimony was precise, clinical and highly technical in a medical way.

Today, on cross-examination,

Corrigan started in to deflate him as an expert.

Corrigan brought out that

Appeals Board Uphold Haymes Deportation

Washington—(U.P.)—The Board of Immigration Appeals today upheld a deportation order against Argentine-born singer Dick Haymes.

The board rejected Haymes' appeal from the deportation order issued against him in March by a special inquiry officer of the Immigration Service.

The order was based on charges that the 36-year-old Haymes should have been excluded from continental United States after a trip to Hawaii in May, 1953, because he obtained exemption from U. S. Military service in World War II as a citizen of a neutral country.

there are several types of pathology. He asked if a "very thorough knowledge of anatomy" was not involved in pathology.

"Not necessarily," Dr. Adelson replied.

"You'd call yourself an anatomist?" Corrigan asked.

"Not at all," the doctor replied.

Helped Write Book

Corrigan then established that the witness was an expert in "forensic pathology," which he said had to do with persons connected with the field of law. Dr. Adelson testified he had collaborated in writing a book on "The Doctor in the Courtroom" which included advice on how to testify.

Corrigan was attempting to go into every move made by the coroner's office in the official examination of Mrs. Sheppard's body. Dr. Adelson, as the state's first witness yesterday, testified the body had 35 separate injuries as a result of the beating.

International Exchange Rules Beaten by Ohioan

Mansfield, O.—(U.P.)—Peter van Harlingen, late of the Hague, Netherlands, has beaten both international exchange restrictions and the local housing shortage.

The 52-year-old stonemason came here in 1950, but was forced to leave behind him some 10,000 guilders which the Netherlands' government would not permit to be taken from the country.

Now, however, van Harlingen, his wife and son have gotten their money out of Holland—in kind—and have a house to show for it, and a charming one at that.

Van Harlingen, with the help of relatives still in Holland, managed to buy a pre-cut six-room house, complete with an eight-ton tile roof, in the old country. It was crated and shipped here.

The frozen assets in Holland were applied to the house which cost 22,000 guilders. It cost $546 to ship it to Baltimore, $789 for U. S. customs fees and $550 to bring the 24 tons of bungalow here.

He Was Ready

Van Harlingen was ready for it with a 20x43-foot basement already dug. Since the house arrived in January, van Harlingen has put in all his spare time assembling it. He has done all his own work, except installing the electrical system and the radiant heating.

The family is in the house now, though a large section of the front roof is only temporary. Many of the tiles did not stand the trip, were broken and must now be replaced.

The house has gleaming East Indian Mahogany siding, each piece of which had to be carefully nailed in place through pre-drilled holes since it would split if a nail were driven through it in ordinary fashion. To support the heavy roof, many more sturdy braces, joists, etc., than are found in conventional houses here were included in the giant "do-it-yourself" package which arrived in a freight car, carefully packed in 175 separate crates.
