

Cerebral Palsy Patients Become Parents of Healthy, Normal Boy

Los Angeles — (U.P.) — Michael Thomas Milliman was one week old today. He is a very special baby because he is completely normal and will be cared for by his parents, both of whom are severe cerebral palsy cases.

Michael's mother, JoAnn, 24, gave birth after four hours' labor at Queen of Angeles Hospital here. Physicians said it was a "rarity" for two cerebral palsy persons to become parents.

Pretty JoAnn and her husband, Richard, also 24, left the hospital with Michael Saturday for 10 days with his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Winterregg, of nearby Van Nuys. When JoAnn has recovered her strength, the couple will resume living at their Los Angeles residence with Michael.

Simple Explanation. JoAnn was certain she could care for her six-pound, five-ounce baby.

"If God thought I couldn't take care of the baby, he never would have let me have him," she said simply.

Mrs. Winterregg said that JoAnn began immediately after arriving at her home to put into practice her five days of hospital instruction.

"He's on feeding every four hours, and JoAnn skips only the 2 a.m. one. After all, she's just had a baby and needs some rest. She uses a bottle holder and holds him. We aren't very worried about it—she can do almost anything anyone else can do, but it takes her longer," Mrs. Winterregg said.

Non-Hereditary

The couple met six years ago while attending a high school for the handicapped. They were married in 1950, and Richard has been in training for a job at United Cerebral Palsy offices. When doctors finally realized JoAnn was going to be a mother, the pregnancy was watched carefully because CP is believed to be nonhereditary. Michael's normalcy added to the belief.

Milliman walks with the help of a cane, and his wife uses a cane or a wheelchair. They have lived together and maintained their apartment without assistance from others, and they plan to continue.

"Mrs. Milliman learned more in her five days at the hospital than most mothers ever do," a nurse said, adding that Michael was "the prettiest baby in our whole nursery."

Dixie Lee Crosby Estate $550,616.96

Hollywood — (U.P.) — The estate left by the late Dixie Lee Crosby, wife of crooner Bing Crosby, today was listed as much less than the several million dollars at which it once was estimated.

An appraisal filed in Superior Court yesterday by the state inheritance tax collector showed Mrs. Crosby, who died Nov. 1, 1952, left $1,332,571.36 which debts, taxes and legal costs whittled to $550,616.96.

Mrs. Crosby left her estate to be divided among Crosby, their four sons, her father, Evan E. Wyatt, and the crooner's mother, Mrs. Catherine Crosby.

Here's a dessert that might be an attraction to you, for it's so easy to make. Take your own favorite plain cake recipe and make cup cakes. Hollow out the centers. Then make a custard sauce, a little heavier than usual, adding one or two more eggs. Chill in your gas refrigerator. Fill the centers of the cup cakes, garnish with cherries, and serve cold. They're delicious.

The crime costs in the U. S. reached an all-time high of $20,000,000,000 in 1953, or about 10 times the amount which is given for the support of all of America's churches.
