Valley's Attractions Listed for Delegates

The following thumbnail descriptions of what to do and what to see is published for the benefit of the 400 or more delegates to the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation convention in Medford this week.

Historic Jacksonville—Scene of the earliest gold strikes in Oregon, Jacksonville is just a few minutes' drive west of Medford. Points of particular interest include an unusually well equipped museum, operated by the Southern Oregon Historical society, the oldest Protestant church west of the Rocky mountains still in use, and many pioneer buildings including the old Masonic hall, and the Beekman bank, which has been left just as it was in Pioneer days.

Crater Lake—Approximately 80 miles east of Medford, with much of the trip following the famous Rogue river, is Crater Lake National park. In addition to the world-renowned lake, the trip includes stops at Mill Creek falls, just this side of Prospect, the gorge of the Rogue River, and a natural bridge over the Rogue. Road conditions in the park should be checked locally at this time of year.

House of Mystery—The nationally-publicized House of Mystery, in the Oregon Vortex, is located northwest of Gold Hill on Sardine creek, on a road plainly marked on Highway 99. The "vortex" is said to have strange powers which contradict the laws of gravity.

Prescott Park—Located atop Roxy Ann, a peak directly east of Medford, Prescott park offers a spectacular view of the entire area.

Lithia Park—A natural park, located in Ashland, Lithia park was designed and landscaped by Andrew McLaren, the man responsible for Golden Gate park in San Francisco. Featuring a zoo with many types of birds and animals, Lithia park is reputed to be one of the outstanding small city parks in the west.

In addition, there are many interesting short drives in the area, and many of the local industries, including packing plants, lumber mills, and manufacturing concerns, welcome visitors.

On The Side

At hand is a communication from 15 feminine subscribers of Baltimore. All are mothers, some are grandmothers. Young and glamorous grandmothers, of course. They are members of an amateur theatrical club. They plan a three day trip to New York. They have written for theater tickets and admission cards to television broadcasting studios with no success. Have been informed there are no theater tickets for the hits for dates they want them. Nor no admission cards to TV studios to see their airwave favorites in person. They ask my advice and assistance. A P.S. says: "We all love you Eddie." Very flattering. Still I wonder if they love me for myself alone or because they think I can get them tickets for "The Pajama Game." Anyway, I have written these charming subscribers a letter which I feel includes some sound advice as to the solution of their problem.

Horses & Women

Have finally met a mother and daughter who actually look like sisters. The mother is 37. The daughter is 19. Speaking of young looking mamas, I once heard of a 25 year old mother of four children who was refused entrance to a night club in Chicago. The man at the door said she looked like a minor and he wouldn't believe otherwise unless she brought along a birth certificate. Then there was that divorcee suit in New York. The husband said that when they were married his wife told him she was 28. He later found her birth certificate which showed she was not 28 when married, but 49! Imagine a woman telling a man about to marry that she was 21 years younger than she really was and getting away with it!

Life Expectancy

A bus driver can hope to live longer than a conductor. So say the life expectancy experts. Being a conductor is said to be harder on the nerves. That is due to the manner in which so many people nag conductors. This research considered only buses that have both driver and conductor. How about one man buses where the operator is both driver and conductor? How about that poor guy's life expectancy? Would seem to me that driving a bus through the traffic of a major city and also having to collect fares, make change, issue transfers and answer questions would take at least 15 years off a man's life.

Asking

Queries from clients. Q. On your Horses & Women department's list of the 69 varieties of blondes, what is the rating of the cherry blonde? A. The type you mention is a synthetic blonde. A dyeing job. Only natural blondes are rated on our world famous Horses & Women department's list. Q. How did "Pie Alley" in Boston get its name? It was originally called "Pi Alley" because of its proximity to printing plants. "Pi," as you know, is a printing term meaning a "jumbled mass of type." A misunderstanding on part of the general public changed the name to Pie Alley.

Get It Right

No player has ever been killed in a football game between major university teams. The deaths on the gridiron have all been in high school or small college games. So I note it said. That's wrong. In a football game between Yale and West Point some years ago a cadet player named Byrnes was killed. The game was played at West Point.

Passing By

Nejla Ates. Energetic exponent of Oriental dancing. In the musical show "Fanny," she does what some people refer to as a "belly dance," others as a "muscle dance." I never saw Little Egypt perform. Nor have I viewed the efforts of the daring danseuse known as "Fatima, the muscle dancer." However, old-timers tell me the dance Nejla does makes those of Little Egypt and Fatima look very tame in comparison.

Old Bus Converted By Family for Trips

Buffalo, N.Y. — (U.P.) — The eight-member James family outgrew its old trailer but got tired of staying put. So they bought a bus and converted it for trips.

Robert F. James, a hardware store operator, bought the 33-passenger bus from a company that went out of business. He spent more than 100 hours installing bunk beds, a galley, a sink, chemical lavatory, shelves and closets.

In the rear storage compartment, James keeps the baggage, tools and four bicycles to be used for side trips.

James claims travel in the bus is much better than in a trailer, even though he averages only seven miles on a gallon of gas. "The bus makes it a lot easier to go camping," he says, "and I'm an old camper."

So are his wife, mother-in-law, five daughters, and Mac, the dog.

Salem — (U.P.) — Motorists may meet with brief delays because of construction on the Pacific highway from Medford to a point five miles north, and from Myrtle Creek to four miles north.
