Grace Kelly Found Hard To Interview; Doesn't Like To Talk About Self

Editor's note: This is the third and last in a series on movie star Grace Kelly.

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Correspondent
New York — (U.P.) — Anyone who wishes to hear Grace Kelly's own version of her fabulous success as a movie star is in for almost as much trouble as a writer who wants to interview Greta Garbo.

This Kelly girls wants to be left alone, too. She doesn't like to talk about herself.

She is here on a vacation, she says, and she wants to forget about movie making and stardom for a while. Four pictures in which she stars still have not been released, so even if this blonde beauty stays away from the cameras another year her face won't be missing from local movie screens.

Rarely Recognized

Grace keeps her one-bedroom apartment here even when she goes to Hollywood. It is on East 66th st., in a big new apartment building where tenants have plenty of privacy. Her living room window overlooks the Manhattan skyline, but only her closest friends look in on the young movie actress in her role of hostess and homebody.

She wanders around New York with the same anonymous freedom any working girl has. People rarely recognize her.

A young man was standing at the candle counter in a local department store recently when he felt a sharp poke in the ribs. He turned and recognized Grace, whom he'd known well when she was appearing regularly here on television dramatic shows. She was grinning mischievously.

Dresses Casually

The slim, frosty beauty who wears clothes with the professional aplomb of a fashion model had on bobby socks, moccasins and a tan polo coat. She also wore glasses, as she usually does because of her extreme near-sightedness. Her toy French poodle, Oliver, a gift of Mrs. Cary Grant, was draped over one arm.

It wasn't a disguise. That's just the casual way Miss Kelly prefers to dress.

Most of her social hours are spent with Oleg Cassini, well known dress designer who was married to actress Gene Tierney. That Hollywood trick of hers to avoid gossip by taking along a third person on all dates is strictly a West Coast ruse. She and Cassini go out unchaperoned.

They play tennis together at a midtown Manhattan tennis club whenever possible. When Cassini is busy, Grace, who also is an excellent swimmer, plays tennis with instructor Donald Budge.

Her idea of a good time when she goes out in the evening is a quiet dinner in a good restaurant, and then either a movie or a few hours spent with old friends.

Occasionally Grace invites Cassini and a few friends in for dinner, and cooks it herself. She is not especially domestic, but she shows the same cool competence in the kitchen that she does on a stage.

Over and over again, when interviewers try to find out what this girl thinks about her success, her future and her present, they run into a confusing wall of polite silence from Grace and brief remarks from friends who are always complimentary, and always vague.

"I think she is pleased," a friend who rode with Grace to her latest movie premier here said doubtfully. "She does take her fame with amazing poise."

Students Walk Out To Protest Cool Room Temperatures

Springfield —(U.P.)— Students at Springfield high school staged a brief walkout yesterday in protest over cool temperatures in the classrooms.

But about a half hour after the classrooms were emptied by the spontaneous walkout, most of the students had returned. Principal E. W. Empey said all but 75 students returned to classes. However, because of a lack of heat school was dismissed at 1:45 p.m. Empey said classes would be held today as scheduled.

Boiler Being Repaired

Temperatures in the classrooms got down to the 50s in the morning because one of the boilers in the heating plant was down for repairs and a sawdust duel delivery was late in arriving. Empey said the other two boilers couldn't be stoked up in time to get adequate heat through the school building.

Teachers and students wore overcoats in some of the classes during the morning, but at 1:20 p.m. the walkout began. Empey used the public address system to ask the students to return to their classrooms. He said most of the students were still in the hallways and returned without further protest.

Empey said the heating plant was operating late yesterday and the temperatures would be back to normal this morning.

Capone Mob Said Taking Control of Nevada Gambling

Berkeley, Calif. — (U.P.) — The head of the Chicago Crime Commission says the Capone mob has taken over control of a number of Nevada gambling casinos in Las Vegas and Reno.

Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the commission, says he has learned that Tony Accardo, reputed leader of the Capone syndicate, has received checks totaling more than $100,000 from a Reno casino in the past few months.

He said elements of the Accardo syndicate took over the place a few months ago.

Fight in Evidence

Furthermore, Peterson said yesterday, there is evidence that Accardo and Paul "The Waiter" Ricca are locked in a bitter fight to control the syndicate. Two recent gangland slayings in Chicago are probable outgrowths of the struggle, he added.

Peterson said Accardo and other mobsters recently have visited Reno, Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe. Some of them, he said, visited San Francisco in August.

Control Not Proven

Peterson, here to address the second annual Institute of Public Prosecutors, said he has no proof that the Mafia is in absolute control of syndicated mob activities.

Rather, he said, there are probably two or three major syndicates each with a sphere of influence. Some may have what he called "interlocking interests" with members of the Mafia.

Outer Space Toys Varied

From toddler to teen, the younger generation is simply "out of this world" in enjoyment of the science-fiction world of outer space.

Wise gift givers will come down to earth in their selections of gifts with that "interplanetary" feeling.

The atomic age has made its entrance into the children's play world — with "real" geiger counters, "atomic" laboratories, cloud chambers, super jet planes.

Space phones, atomic rocket ships, light-ray guns, flying saucer pistols, magic goggles and space helmets are ready for the "avant-garde" of the new era.

Of course, every space boy or girl will want a suit such as his favorite hero "Flash Gordon," "Buck Rogers" or "Tom Corbett" wears — complete with official insignia and "secret" equipment. For the young reader of science-fiction — there are many books available to keep his adventuresome appetite fully satisfied.

So, zoom the kids to super-sonic adventures with gifts that lend excitement to their make-believe world.

Former Local Woman Passes in California

News of the death of Mrs. Margaret Price, 83, of Sacramento has been received here by her brother, Nick Kime, 511 Palm st.

Mrs. Price, who was born on a farm near Bourbon, Ind., in 1870 came to Jackson county in 1872 and spent her girlhood on the Kime ranch in the Griffith creek area. She had been away from this area for a number of years.

Beside her brother, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harry Day, Sacramento, a nephew, Wilbur Kime, Griffith creek, and a number of other relatives.

The idea of an illustrated greeting caught the fancy of Sir Henry Cole, who in 1846 asked an artist friend, J. C. Horsley, to design a card for him, showing a family toasting Christmas with glasses of wine.

Standard helps bring in the "big ones" from Pacific Northwest and Alaskan waters

Since 1905, when we fueled the first gasoline-powered boat, at Seattle, Standard has planned ahead for Pacific Northwest and Alaskan fishermen's changing needs. We pioneered cold-weather starting fluid . . . developed fuels to extend cruising range, boost speed and power . . . lubricants for canned and frozen fish processing machines. Standard tankers range your shores to supply the fishing fleets, keep canneries humming. Our on-shore supply points have expanded steadily, too. Today, Standard Marine Stations in the Pacific Northwest and Alaska serve fishermen and pleasure craft owners along coastal and inland waterways alike.

...and we're still pioneering products to help cut your motoring costs. A recent result of Standard's automotive research is "RPM 10-30 Special" . . . the motor oil that can save up to 3/4 gallon of gas in every 5 . . . in all climates . . . all cars . . . all seasons. It's a change for the better when you change your car to RPM 10-30 Special Motor Oil—at Standard Stations and independent Chevron Stations.
