Hollywood — (U.P.) — Maurice Chevalier, now 66, will appear on American TV for the first time because Bob Hope thinks video needs "new blood."

The ski-nosed comic figures television viewers are getting tired of the same comics, jugglers, singers and trained dogs, so he pioneered a new idea, by going to Europe to film his NBC show.

As his chief guest star he chose Chevalier, who hasn't been seen in the U.S. since 1947. After that the Frenchman fell into political disfavor and was unable to get a visa to enter the country until recently.

"I first met him in 1945," said Hope, who was lounging around his house to rest after flying in from Texas.

People Cheered

"At that time he was kind of dancing a tightrope as far as the people of France were concerned. But when I introduced him at a benefit in Nice, France, they cheered. After that he always told me he was grateful."

"So when I had an invitation to the command performance in London last month I got the idea of doing a few spots for my TV show over there. We got Chevalier, Bea Lillie and a ballerina of the Paris Opera, Liane Daye. The BBC filmed the show for us in London.

"It's interesting and exciting, instead of seeing the same thing on TV all the time."

Hope is so enthusiastic about making TV an around-the-world event that he predicts an international network, with American TV sets picking up televised events from foreign countries via an overseas cable. Next year he plans to film an entire TV show in Paris at the invitation of the French government.

One Disadvantage

There was only one disadvantage, he added, to having an English studio audience for his Chevalier show.

"When the announcer came out to do the commercial and started talking about cake mix, everybody laughed. They thought it was a comedy bit," he groaned.

After returned from Europe two weeks ago, and before taking off for an Air Force base to entertain troops on New Year's Day, the much-traveled Hope hopped over to Texas—to open a bank.

"It's another branch for Howard Hughes," drawled Hope. "They have to pay off his Christmas Club account."

Lower Premiums Due School-Trained Student Drivers

The Mayflower Insurance exchange this week announced a 20 per cent reduction in driver insurance premiums for graduates of high school driver-training programs.

Carl Weidner, state manager of the firm, made the announcement during a Medford visit yesterday. He said the reduction is being granted in the firm's 26 agencies, including two in Medford.

He said the decision to make the reductions came after a study of the records of driver-trained students, which showed the untrained young drivers have up to five times as many arrests and accidents as those with training.

The reductions will go to such students and to the families of students who have had the training. Only requirements to obtain the reduced premium is a certificate of completion of the course.

Driver-trained students in all Jackson county high schools are eligible, Weidner said. The two Mayflower agencies in Medford are those operated by John Maas, 218 South Central ave., and Earl Heft, 118 North Riverside ave.

Jaycees To Assist Youngsters To Buy Christmas Gifts

The Medford Junior Chamber of Commerce today announced it will sponsor a shopping tour for underprivileged children before Christmas this year. It solicited donations from those wishing to join in the project.

Dick Bowers, Jaycee president, said it is hoped to raise about $200 through voluntary donations to be collected without solicitation, and that shortly before Christmas Jaycees will escort a group of youngsters through downtown stores, where they can buy gifts for their families and friends.

"Greatest Gift"

"In this way we will give these youngsters the greatest gift possible at Christmas—that of themselves being able to give. The children can purchase gifts for whomever they please," Bowers explained.

The amount sought will permit the Jaycees to sponsor tours for 25 to 50 youngsters, he said, and pointed out that all the money donated will go for the gift fund, with none for administration.

Those wishing to donate may send their contributions to the Jaycees at Post Office Box 251, Medford.

About 3,500 persons die in the U.S. each year as a result of fire in farm buildings, current records show.

The U.S. maintains about 125 destroyers in the fleet of the Pacific compared with only 54 in 1941.

As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

Son Must Take Chances Of Mother's Finances

There are times when personal feelings must be put aside and action must be taken, even if it may result in hard feelings. Such a case is described by the young man who writes:

(Q) "A year ago, my father died and left my mother well fixed for the rest of her life. Mother has always been poor at figures and has no sense of money values. While Dad lived, he kept a careful watch over how my mother spent her money and he never permitted her to have charge accounts at the stores. Now she is on a spending spree, buying right and left and charging everything. If she keeps this up, she will be penniless in a short time.

"I am the only son, though I have two married sisters. They live far enough away so that they are not aware of what our mother is doing with her money. My wife thinks I should manage Mother's money for her as my father did, but I hesitate to suggest it to her because I am afraid she will think I have a personal motive for wanting to get her money into my hands. How would you suggest that I handle this problem?"

(A) I suggest that you stop thinking about how your mother may feel about your offer to help her manage her financial affairs and take action at once. Otherwise when she is penniless, you may find you are the one who will have to assume the responsibility for supporting her.

Dr. Hurlock

Tell her in no uncertain terms that money is not made of rubber, to be stretched to any desired size. Make up a budget for her, based on the money she has and the income it will bring annually. Tell her exactly what she can afford to spend for food, clothing, a home, medical expenses, etc.

Then advise her to close her charge accounts. To a person with spendthrift tendencies, charge accounts invite trouble. If she has to pay cash for something she is tempted to buy, she may find the temptation waning.

Each week, go over the accounts she is asked to keep and point out her purchases that were unwise. All of this, I realize, sounds as if you were dealing with your child instead of your mother. But if she is behaving like a child in handling her money, you must treat her as a child.

Civilian Defense Men Get Training

Three local men represented Jackson county and city of Ashland civilian defense organizations at a rescue training course held recently in Eugene, according to Col. Charles Stafford, county civil defense director.

Representing the county civil defense agency were William R. Flagg, chief weighmaster in charge of traffic for the county engineer's office, and LeRoy Williams, of the Medford fire department. Capt. Charles D. Davis of the Ashland fire department represented the Ashland city agency.

The men received instruction in casualty handling, use of rescue trucks, tools and equipment, and other information pertaining to civil defense rescue operations. The course was conducted by a federal Civil Defense administration rescue demonstration team.

Purpose of the course, according to Colonel Stafford, was to instruct those who attended in fundamental rescue techniques so they could demonstrate them to those in their own civil defense organizations.

County 4-H Yule Event Set Dec. 20

The Jackson County 4-H council will hold its annual hayride and Christmas basket event Dec. 20. It was announced yesterday following a Monday meeting of council members.

Those attending will start wrapping gifts at 7 p.m. at the Applegate grade school gymnasium. Boys are requested to take ribbon, and girls are asked to take wrapping paper.

The hayride and Christmas caroling will start at about 8 p.m., and gifts will be delivered to needy families.

Each council member is asked to bring one article of clothing, one article of food, and a toy. The council's first annual talent benefit show will be held Feb. 14, with proceeds to go to the International Farm Youth Exchange program. The hour and place for the show will be announced later.

Each 4-H club in the county is asked to provide acts for the show, and auditions will be held Jan. 29.
