

Doctor Team Calls Major Consultation On Illness of Pope

Vatican City — (U.P.) — The condition of Pope Pius XII was reported worse today only a few hours before a team of doctors called a consultation at his bedside.

Sources close to the papal household said the slight but steady progress recorded by the 78-year-old pontiff in the past week had halted.

These authoritative sources described the Pope's condition this morning as "not so good." They said his pulse, which has been fluctuating in a disturbing manner, was irregular.

Medford Lions Club Host to Students

The Medford Lions club members at a dinner meeting last night entertained senior class members of the Medford High school football squad and the pep team. The event, an annual one, was held at the Pioneer room of the Jackson hotel.

About 90 persons attended and among the guests were E. H. Hedrick, superintendent of schools, Fred Spiegelberg, head football coach, and Paul Even- sen, line coach.

Leonard Mayfield, assistant superintendent of schools, was the main speaker.

The program was arranged by Ernest Kennedy, program chairman. Dr. Lee Mellish introduced the guests and Spiegelberg introduced the team and pep team members.

Entertainment included barbershop harmony numbers sung by Ken Teeters, Don Minkler, Al Huntmann and Clyde Leonard, all club members.

Vatican City — (U.P.) — The greatest team of doctors ever assembled for Pope Pius XII called a major consultation at his bedside today in a new effort to identify his baffling stomach illness.

Five doctors planned to see the 78-year-old Pontiff today, a week after he lay apparently near death in a state of serious collapse.

The Pope failed to record further progress Wednesday night for the first time since his illness. Authoritative sources said he had a restless night.

He still is seriously ill and weak, the sources said, and the exertion of Wednesday when he walked in his apartment for 30 minutes tired him.

But the sources emphasized there has been no relapse and there is no new cause for alarm.

Authoritative sources said the doctors suspect the Pope has haemetic gastritis. This is gastritis with blood in the stomach and often points to an ulcer or tumor. The doctors believe it is an ulcer and have excluded a tumor on the basis of tests made so far, the sources said.

Examining Doctors Listed

The five doctors examining the Pope were:

Prof. Riccardo Galleazzi-Lisi, Rome eye specialist and general practitioner who has attended the Pope for 25 years.

Raffaele Paolucci di Valmaggiore, war hero who sank an enemy battleship in World War I and won an American decoration. He is a Monarchist senator, a cancer expert and a world authority on surgery.

Antonie Gasbarrini, 72, expert who has devoted his life to science and to study of the intestines. He is president of the European Society of Gastro-Enterology.

Swiss Specialist Called

Luigi de Stefano, 37, one of Rome's most promising surgeons. He studied under Gasbarrini.

Paul Niehans, 70, Swiss specialist who treated the Pope for 10 months with animal hormones, a treatment now abandoned on the advice of Italian specialists.

Authoritative sources said the doctors' visit was aimed mainly at studying the Pope's progress and estimating when they will be able to make important x-rays of his abdomen.

Queen May Visit Canada; Margaret Wants US Journey

London — (U.P.) — Queen Elizabeth is expected to make her first visit to Canada as a sovereign next year. There's a possibility, too, that high-spirited Princess Margaret may talk her family into letting her visit the United States.

Neither of the trips is "officially" on the royal calendar. But well-informed sources close to Britain's court say both of them are high on the list of possible events.

Will Travel To Ottawa

The prediction is that the queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will travel to Ottawa next September or October to inaugurate the new Canadian brigade of guards.

Only the queen can accept the oath of allegiance from the brigade which is her personal bodyguard in the dominion. Only she can commission the officers and present its colors.

It would be Elizabeth's first trip to Canada since she went there as a princess in 1951. Whether she would cross the border into the United States isn't known.

Margaret's Plans Hazy

As for Margaret's travel plans, they are much hazier. But it would surprise no one at the palace if the petite, 24-year-old princess visits both the United States and Canada next year. She has been dreaming of a holiday in the new world for a long time, and as they say at Buckingham Palace—"Margaret always gets what she wants."

Margaret herself regards the trip as a "must." Before she can go, however, she has to receive formal permission from the queen and an invitation from President Eisenhower.

Theme Song Suggested For College Students

Carthage, Ill. — (U.P.) — Prof. Orville Riggs, noting that Carthage College students are checked for attendance at chapel by secretaries sitting in a balcony, suggested the students adopt the theme song:

"When the Roll is Called up Yonder, I'll be There."

Rhodes Scholarship Competitors Picked

Portland — (U.P.) — Robert S. Summers, Halfway, Ore., and Kenneth J. Love, Lynden, Wash. were chosen yesterday to represent the state of Oregon in competition for Rhodes scholarships to Oxford university.

Summers, a political science senior at University of Oregon, and Love, senior mathematics major at Reed College, were chosen after interviews by the Oregon Rhodes scholars committee, which is headed by Dr. O. Meredith Wilson, president of University of Oregon.

The two will be among representatives of six states from whom four Rhodes scholars will be chosen Saturday at Spokane.

A total of 32 scholars will be chosen throughout the nation.

States Squabble Over Prosecution of Youth

Pen-Mar, Md. — (U.P.) — Ronnie Naylor, 16, broke into the Waldheim Hotel which straddles the Pennsylvania - Maryland state line. He entered the hotel on the Maryland side, and stole a small sum of money on the Pennsylvania side.

Officials of both states are trying to decide which state should prosecute Naylor.

Court Allows Man To Change His Mind

Austin, Tex. — (U.P.) — C. D. Lance of Mission, Tex., had court approval today to change his mind.

Lance first sued C. F. Spikes of Mission to get water he said Spikes was diverting from his land. Then he sued three cities for damage to his crops because of diverted water. The city claimed Lance couldn't change his mind and sue once for water and again for money. The third Court of Civil Appeals said he could.
