As We Live

BOY FINDS IT HARD ADJUSTING TO OTHERS

By Elizabeth B. Hurlock, Ph.D.

How to cope with the problem of a boy who has never been allowed to do what the other boys do is the question raised by the woman who writes:

(Q) "I am very much interested in a young boy of 12, who is the son of one of my friends. He has always been such a nice boy, but his parents would never allow him to do what other boys of his age did. Even at home he was expected to go to his room and be quiet. He has a sister and the parents have allowed her to play with other girls. Recently the parents allowed this boy to join a Boy Scout group, but he doesn't get along very well with the other boys. I am afraid he will lose interest in scouting. That would be too bad, as this would do so much for him. I would like to help the boy, but I do not know how to tackle the problem. Have you any suggestions?"

(A) Why not talk to the scoutmaster about this boy? Explain to him how he has been kept from doing things with other boys until now, and how anxious you are to have him become a regular boy.

The chances are that the scoutmaster has no idea as to how sheltered this boy has been, and does not realize why he does not get along well with the other boys. With the information you can give him, he will know better than he now does how to help the boy to become a part of the group.

If your friend is financially able to do so, urge her to have a high school boy who is a good athlete play different games with her son. Many high school boys would be glad to earn money this way, and it would help this boy to catch up to the level of his age mates.

Unless this boy learns to do the things the boys of his age do, whether it is playing baseball, football, tennis, or any other activity, he will continue to be an outsider.

It is not his fault that he is unsociable. Everything his family has done has made him so. But it is not too late to learn now to do things with boys if he has some help.

Freight Train Crash

Sends Cars Flying

Paris, Inn. — (U.P.) — A crash of two New York Central freight trains yesterday sent boxcars hurtling through the air like sticks of wood, ripping off the walls and roof of an apartment house.

Police reported that by a "miracle" no one was seriously injured although four persons who escaped death by a whisker were treated for minor injuries.

NINE DOLLARS A BUSHEL

I have managed to procure a grinding mill but I find that the few stores that have plain wheat for retail sale in this area have a price tag on it of 15c per pound. That is equivalent to $9 a bushel. If wheat is such a rare, precious commodity, how can a poor man afford to return to the staff of life?

(C. W. W.)

Take a little trip out in the country some day, between the first of September and the last of November. You may find a farmer who not only grows wheat but will even sell you a peck or a bushel or a bag of it without betraying astonishment at your intention to eat the stuff.

In the pamphlet Wheat to Eat, available on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope, among numerous recipes for preparation of wheat in various dishes or treats for the table, there is the report of a New Jersey retired farmer who said his family usually ate their own wheat for breakfast, sometimes for supper, toasted a bit before grinding to give it a nutty flavor.

In his farming days he received 56 cents a bushel for his wheat, but as a retired person residing in the city he finds a bushel, all prettied up and flabbergasted in the latest fashion costs him about $60.

For the benefit of anyone who has the gumption to procure a supply of plain wheat and use it in the everyday family diet, I point out once again that wheat as it comes from the threshers is not only more appetizing than any refined wheat product but it is the best food source of the vitamins (of the B-complex) in which the ordinary American diet is so often deficient.

And may I remind you further that in my opinion an optimal daily intake of vitamin B complex is the best heart tonic child or adult with weak heart can use.

Culinary use of wheat, entire,

cracked, coarsely ground or freshly ground to flour every day or at least twice a week, in place of refined, doctored, suggary breakfast foods, so-called,

and in place of refined white flour is prerequisite for the prevention or cure of Yankee stomach, peptic ulcer, chronic constipation and the colon derangement known to many victims as send 25c and stamped, self-ad-mucous "colitis."

If you happen to be subject to any of the troubles mentioned, it can do no harm to let me "tell you more." Not that all the other doctors are out of step, but just that I've picked up from all the other doctors a considerable amount of inside information, some of which is supported by scientific experiments. So, when I say "in my opinion" I mean to imply merely that I am saying what seems to be the medical consensus of the day.

Some people report that they have not only freed themselves from a bad habit but they have experienced improvement in general health from the study of

Little Lesson No. 25—The Constitution Habit and Colon Hygiene. For this 30-page booklet
